MADRID POUNDED BY REBEL SHELLS IN FIERCE ATTACK

Arrage Is Started Before Dawn, Lasts Throughout Daylight Hours in Heaviest Bombardment of Spain's Civil War.

STREET CAR HIT, 15 ARE WOUNDED

Efforts of Insurgents to Relieve 3,000 Besieged in University City Fail; Food, Water Dwindling.

MADRID, April 21.—(P)—Insurgent shells, pounding mercilessly for hours today in the fiercest bombardment in the half-year of Madrid, caused the havoc that the world's capitals had in modern war.

The heart of this metropolis of 900,000 inhabitants, it seemed, was being hammered into dust by rain of explosives. The barrage started before dawn and last-thoughout the daylight hours, 250 shells found targets.

It was the tenth successive day, the heaviest, of the insurgent shelling. It raised the total of own fatalities to at least 150, added at least 100 injured, many critically, to the list of casualties.

As this dispatch was written, Gran Via, the "Broadway" of Madrid, literally had become a major war front. Deafening explosions, followed by the sickening crash of falling debris, came continually.

City Is Raked.

Insurgent batteries raked the city with a machine-gun type of fire from anti-aircraft guns, interspersed with the heavy explosives. Large cannon. Widespread sections were punished. Inhabitants could tell where the next shell would be aimed from easily maneuvered anti-aircraft pieces.

Looking outside the door while in his dispatch, this correspondent saw a shell strike a street which was cluttered for safety behind a row of buildings. The stopped and 15 wounded passengers were helped from it. One man was carried out with her leg splintered.

Shells fell at intervals of two to three minutes, sometimes in three anti-aircraft batteries seemed to be blazing in unison—30-second intervals.

Autos Commandeered.

Militiamen with drawn pistols commandeered some of the most modern cars, and commandeered them for ambulances. One of the times this correspondent saw a car being used as a mobile ambulance, was a small boy.

Some shells struck high in buildings, ripping away masonry and splintering glass that fell in streets. Others burst in the streets, splintering steel fragments, and plaster in all directions. Others plunged through windows, demolishing the interiors of dwellings and offices.

Government officials ascribed the fierce bombardment to an attempt by insurgents to force the defense army to release its stronghold on University City, the fasted model education center of Madrid's northwest. Efforts of insurgents to relieve a crack garrison of 3,000 men, isolated there, of food and water, have failed.

New York Widow Is Found Strangled

NEW YORK, April 21.—(P)—Anglers today killed Mrs. Carolla Carrera, 54-year-old widow, who was found in the bedroom of her four-room apartment with a stone's throw of police headquarters.

Police said several pieces of furniture in the apartment were overturned.

Both arms had been tied behind the widow's back, a gag thrust in her mouth, and marks on her neck indicated the manner in which she died.

The body of the woman, who lived alone with the third-floor apartment, was discovered by police after relatives notified headquarters they received no response from her.

One of the relatives who had been to see Mrs. Carrera said she had been ill recently and requested them to make daily visits.

Prince Juan, 23, Is Selected If Spain's King Is Restored

Two Other Sons of Alfonso Have Renounced Their Rights to Throne.

SALAMANCA, Spain, April 21.—(P)—Monarchist leaders tonight disclosed insurgent General Francisco Franco's statement "the door is left open" for a king resulted in a virtual agreement between Carlists and Bourbon supporters that Prince Juan, youngest son of Alfonso XIII, would occupy the throne if a restoration occurs.

Carlism said the 23-year-old Prince of the Asturias would be acceptable to them since their pretender, Prince Carlos of the senior Bourbon line, died childless in Vienna last year.

Followers of exiled King Alfonso, content to see any Bourbon on the throne, believed the former monarch would be willing to renounce his claims in favor of his son.

(Prince Juan became heir-presumptive to the Spanish throne when his two elder brothers, Alfonso and Jaime, renounced their rights of succession.)

(Alfonso, the eldest son, gave up his claims so he could marry a commoner, the former Edelmira San Pedro, of Havana, Cuba, from whom he is now separated.)

(Young Prince Juan was married in Rome, October 12, 1935, to Princess Marie, of Bourbon-Sicily. They are the parents of one daughter, Princess Maria Del Pilar, born last July in Cannes.)

IL DUCE TO MEET AUSTRIAN PREMIER

Venice Conference May Result in Session Between Hitler, Mussolini.

VENICE, April 21.—(P)—Premier Benito Mussolini and Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria, sped toward Venice tonight for a conference that may overshadow an even more important face-to-face meeting of statesmen—a visit by Il Duce to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler.

Diplomatic circles in the capital heard increasing reports that the premier would fly to Germany for a meeting May 4 at "Der Fuehrer's" Berchtesgaden retreat, but official confirmation was lacking.

A thorough discussion of Italian-German co-operation, together with all the allied diplomatic topics that such co-operation involves, were believed by informed observers to be the aim of such a meeting between the two Nationalist leaders.

First, however, Il Duce will talk with Chancellor Schuschnigg to show the world Italian-Austrian relations are still intimate, despite the accord with Germany and the Yugoslavian treaty.

The first conference is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, and probably will be held aboard the premier's yacht Aurora anchored at Venice.

Political circles said the pair would discuss, among other things, the question of a Hapsburg restoration in Austria, a move Mussolini has balked in the past and

GOOD PRICES PAID FOR 4-H LIVESTOCK

$25,496 Paid Youths of North Georgia for 350 Head of Cattle Here.

North Georgia 4-H Club boys yesterday learned the economical lesson of the Agricultural College-sponsored live stock program for this section of the state.

When the rapid-fire talk of the auctioneer had ceased at the second annual Atlanta fat cattle show and sale yesterday, the club boys were figuratively jingling $25,496.50 in their collective pockets of prize-winning calves brought at of prize-winning calves brought at the sale yesterday.

Willard Mathis' grand champion 920-pound Hereford was the first calf to be sold. After brisk bidding, it was knocked down to the Jones Mercantile Company, of Canton, for $460, or 50 cents per pound.

Next to go was Rastis Hyatt's reserve champion, another 920-pound Hereford, which also was bought by the Jones Mercantile Company for $184, or 20 cents per pound. Both boys are from Fannin county.

The champion pen, won by Berry Schools, was sold to Armour & Company for 11.80 cents per pound. This netted the school $368.16, the three steers weighing a total of 3,120 pounds.

The 13,690 pounds of cattle in the champion carload lot, owned by M. H. Hogan, of Dublin, was bid in by Rogers, Inc., at 13.50 cents per pound, a total of $1,848.15.

CARPENTER HALTS CITY RELIEF FUND FOR ANOTHER DAY

Third Ward Alderman, by 'Notice To Reconsider,' Leaves Hundreds of Hungry Unfed Pending Council Session Today.

WELFARE OFFICES ARE STILL CLOSED

Vote To Give $180,000 for Remainder of Year Is 11 to 2, Couch and Carpenter Only 'Noes.'

Robert Carpenter, third ward alderman, who insists that non-school city employees be voted a return of basic pay before food for the hungry and shelter for the aged be provided through a council appropriation, yesterday succeeded again through a parliamentary maneuver in blocking issuance of relief funds.

The doors of the Fulton Department of Public Welfare remained closed to the unemployed depending on the city and county for their very existence.

The government employees work under a 5 per cent cut from basic pay under $100 and 10 per cent over that figure.

Carpenter yesterday served notice of reconsideration after general council had voted, 11 to 2, to make immediate allocation to the department and to release $20,000 of it for April relief.

Carpenter was the single member of council who voted to hold up relief longer.

Mayor Hartsfield issued a call for another special meeting of council at 3 o'clock this afternoon, at which session the matter can be considered and it was said to be assured of passage.

Meanwhile, the sign reading "Closed awaiting appropriation of city council," remained on the doors of relief headquarters at 160 Pryor street to greet needy persons whose only means of livelihood is the help they receive from the city and county through the county welfare department.

"Relief headquarters" has no money to distribute, and perforce has to remain closed until the

INCREASE ASKED IN RELIEF FUNDS

House Bloc To Push Bill Seeking $2,520,000,000 for Work, Jobless Survey

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P) A group of representatives claiming the support of 50 to 100 Democratic colleagues agreed tentatively today to seek a relief appropriation $1,000,000,000 larger than that recommended by President Roosevelt.

Representative Maverick, Democrat, Texas, said the group probably would support a bill by Representative Voorhis, Democrat, California.

That measure would provide $2,520,000,000 for work relief and an unemployment survey in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

It would fix standards for work projects, declaring that soil conservation, flood control, drought prevention, water conservation, prevention of stream pollution and slum clearance are suitable undertakings.

Drive to Exceed Appropriation.

Another drive to exceed the $1,500,000,000 appropriation proposed by the President yesterday was begun by a house "liberal bloc." Representative Boileau, Progressive, Wisconsin, said the bloc would try to obtain $3,000,000,000.

Democratic leaders prepared, however, to resist these demands. They expressed agreement with the President's contention that going beyond his recommendation would nullify efforts to reduce an indicated deficit of $418,000,000 next year.

Some senate Democrats advocated a relief fund smaller, instead of larger, than the President requested.

Controversy developed, meanwhile, over legislation which the President said probably would be introduced to strengthen his hand in trimming federal expenditures.

Mr. Roosevelt said the proposed legislation would give him specific authority to withhold from depart-

MITCHELL COUNTY IN 'AWARDS' RACE

Co-operation of All Citizens Is Stressed as First Ingredient for Victory.

By HERMAN HANCOCK.

CAMILLA, Ga., April 21.—Despite a 50 per cent reduction in tax assessments and a cut of 14 mills in the tax rate, Mitchell county today prepared to throw its gauntlet into The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards with determination to win.

Following a meeting of civic leaders last night at the McNair hotel here, representatives were busy obtaining from organization members indications as to what program should be evolved "to bring the greatest benefits to the citizens of our county."

Backed by members of the Mitchell county commission, of which J. W. Butler is chairman, those present at last night's gathering laid plans for one of the most comprehensive improvement programs in this section of the state.

Special attention will be given to definite stress laid on county-wide co-operation, it was indicated.

Speakers said they want every

Automobile fatalities in 85 major cities from March 13 to April 10 totaled 622, according to statistics made public yesterday by William L. Austin, director of the United States Bureau of Census.

Commons To Discuss U. S. War Debt Today

LONDON, April 21.—(UP)—The question of Britain's war debt to the United States will be brought up in the house of commons again tomorrow.

Rupert de la Bere, Conservative, from the Evesham division of Worcestershire, scheduled the question tonight and said that he would ask Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain to answer it tomorrow.

Labor Rivals Smile in Face of Impending Storm

John Hamilton's Wife Asks for Separation

TOPEKA, Kan., April 21.—(P) Mrs. Laura Hamilton filed suit in district court today for separate maintenance from John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Mrs. Hamilton asked custody of their two children, Daniel, 20, and Lau, 12. The suit charged "gross neglect of duty, abandonment and extreme cruelty."

Mrs. Hamilton has maintained her residence here while her husband has resided in Washington, headquarters of the committee.

They were married January 28, 1915.

BUDGET BALANCING URGED BY BANKERS

Only Inflation Danger in Deposits Created by U. S. Financing, Report Says.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 21.—(P)—The economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association told its executive council today that the most effective way to avoid an inflationary boom would be to balance the federal budget.

"If that were done the other measures needed would be greatly simplified," the report added.

"If it is not done no other measures can be adequate."

The commission, reporting that the American business was entering the prosperity phase of the recovery movement, said:

"There is no present evidence that there is now or has been recent

Blind Atlantan Given New Honors For Work at Columbia University

Clifford Martin Wither, young Atlantan whose blindness proved no handicap to scholastic achievement, yesterday was awarded the $1,500 Columbia University fellowship in physics.

Wither, who is 24, is the son of Richard C. Wither, assistant city purchasing agent, and Mrs. Carney M. Wither, a teacher in the sight-saving class at the Calhoun school.

Although blind virtually since birth, young Wither achieved remarkable scholastic records both at Georgia Tech, where he received his bachelor of science degree in 1934, and Emory University, where he took his master's degree in 1935.

Since his postgraduate work at Emory, Wither has been attending Columbia University, on a $600 fellowship. He is considered one of the most brilliant students at Columbia, and is working in the pure science department for a doctor of philosophy degree.

He received a cup when he was graduated from Tech for being the best student in the class. His low-

TROOPS ARE SENT IN SHOE STRIKE RIOT

Lewis Presses Unionization Drive in Harlan, Kentucky Coal Fields.

By the Associated Press.

Eight companies of national guardsmen were ordered to duty in the Lewiston-Auburn strike area in Maine yesterday after fresh outbreaks of violence.

Fists and clubs were flailed and stones and tear gas were hurled in clashes between police and demonstrators in the district where a Committee for Industrial Organization union called a strike against 19 shoe factories four weeks ago.

A squadron of state officers, stationed on a bridge linking the two cities, beat back approximately 1,000 marchers who tried to cross the span. Shortly afterward, the police dispersed about the same number of persons milling around two shoe plants after they had tossed tear gas bombs into the crowd.

At Augusta, Governor L. O. Barrows directed the mobilization of the troops and declared he was ready to marshal the "entire military forces of Maine to preserve constitutional authority."

Temporary Injunction.

The state supreme court issued a temporary injunction against the strike Tuesday on the grounds the methods employed by CIO leaders violated the Wagner labor relations act.

Timing its move to coincide with a senate committee's investigation of labor conditions there, John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers of America, pressed a unionization drive in the Harlan (Ky.) coal fields. William Turnblazer, a district president of the UMWA, said

Auto Toll in 85 Cities 622 for Four Weeks

Automobile fatalities in 85 major cities from March 13 to April 10 totaled 622, according to statistics made public yesterday by William L. Austin, director of the United States Bureau of Census.

Six deaths as the result of crashes were recorded in Atlanta during the four-week period, while seven were listed for the same period in 1936.

The 622 fatalities reported for the four-week period over the nation showed an increase of 78 deaths, or 14.3 per cent, over the same time in 1936 when 544 deaths were recorded.

Chicago led the nation during the period with 68. New York city was second with 67 and Los Angeles third with 45.

GREEN ORGANIZER DROPS PEACE POSE AFTER TALKS HERE

Pressure - Swayed Delegates Leave Georgia Federation President on Eve of Test as Labor Forces Marshal for Showdown.

By WILL RILEY.

All hope for peace in the Nance-Green controversy in Georgia labor ranks was blasted last night with the announced determination of Green's representatives to "clean house" in the Georgia Federation of Labor, insofar as any connection with the Committee for Industrial Organization is concerned.

The final showdown of strength of the two factions was expected late last night to emerge at the second day's session of the Georgia Federation's annual convention this morning, as close friends of Nance frankly admitted he had little chance of beating down the powerful opposition that has developed over the last two days.

Hope of compromise went glimmering with reports that Nance would fight to the last ditch any effort to remove him and that, if he was determined to fight the issue, forces of William Green, AFL president, would eject him from presidency of the Georgia Federation.

While making no direct statement involving the CIO and delegates of CIO unions to the Georgia convention, Frank J. Dillon, sent here by Green as AFL czar of the present crisis, declared he and Nance were "unable to compose the differences which prevail."

Dillon Statement.

Following is the text of Dillon's formal statement to The Constitution:

"Mr. Nance and myself collaborated in a joint statement issued to the press today, in which we publicly stated that conferences had been held and that we would continue to participate in them, with the hope that we would be able to report some mutually satisfactory adjustment of the prevailing deplorable controversy. We have both sincerely discussed the problem. But, to my mind, we have been unable to compose the differences which prevail."

"Mr. Nance has been frank and courteous and I have endeavored to be likewise."

"I regret, beyond my ability to state, my disappointment and distress that I apparently have been unsuccessful in accomplishing the result which I had hoped to accomplish."

"Unless something develops between now and the time the convention convenes tomorrow, which would insure an equitable basis for understanding, there appears no alternative for me, as a representative of the AFL, than to rule that laws of the AFL must be adhered to by the president and all his associate officers of the Georgia Federation of Labor."

"Personally, I could have nothing but the highest regard for Mr. Nance. I most sincerely hope that he will elect to remain loyal to the American Federation of Labor, but should he determine to do otherwise, then he alone is responsible."

"But, regardless of what his decision may be, the AFL will carry on."

Nance Unavailable.

Nance, when efforts were made to give him an opportunity to reply to Dillon's statement, was unavailable.

Nance and Dillon both addressed

47 Dead, 47 Missing In Japanese Storm

TOKYO, Thursday, April 22.—(UP)—A severe storm swept the west coast of Saghalien Island today, taking a heavy toll of lives, the Domei (Japanese official) news agency reported from Toyohara.

Police recovered 47 bodies of drowned fishermen and reported that 47 other persons were missing. Damage was extensive.

Heavy fogs covered large areas of Japan proper, including the inland sea where shipping schedules were disrupted.

TREASURY TO AVOID LOCAL TAX FIELDS IF REVENUE NEEDED

Method Sought To Increase Cash Inflow by Present Channels.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP) Informed officials predicted today that if the administration asks congress for new taxes next session the treasury will seek to avoid invasion of state and local revenue fields.

Treasury experts are conducting a broad canvass of the entire tax structure in line with policies laid down in President Roosevelt's budget message yesterday.

The experts were reported concentrating on methods of increasing the cash inflow through existing channels prior to any effort to develop new revenue sources.

For example, the Internal Revenue Bureau announced today that taxpayers must pay social security levies regardless of pending litigation, or suffer penalties if the supreme court validates the security act.

Mr. Roosevelt, revising earlier budget estimates, told congress yesterday that the treasury would report in November on possible methods of stepping up collections under existing taxes and would suggest "new or additional taxes" if these were necessary to meet revenue deficiencies.

No New Levies Seen. Some congressional leaders are known to be antipathetic to new levies and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said this week the deficit for the 1938 fiscal year probably could be whittled to a "narrow margin" without imposing additional imposts.

The officials who said the treasury would make every effort to avoid duplicating state and local tax levies pointed out that the department now is investigating to determine how existing duplications may be eliminated.

With state and local tax schemes ruled out, any general sales tax would not be considered.

COUNTERFEITING CHARGED. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 21.—(AP)—Five boys and a girl, ranging in ages from 14 to 18, were ordered held to the federal grand jury here today on charges of making and passing counterfeit coins.

Chiang's Diary Bares Startling Details of Abduction As Plans To End Operations of Bandits Are Explained

This is the fifth instalment of two remarkable documents—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's "Diary of My Captivity in Sian" and Mme. Chiang's own story of how she helped rescue her husband and save China from a civil war. The first four of the nine instalments presented Mme. Chiang's story, and the generalissimo now begins his account of his kidnapping, written as a diary while under threat of death, after an introductory analysis of the Sian mutiny.

By CHIANG KAI-SHEK. (Copyright, 1937, by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part forbidden.)

SHANGHAI, April 21.—The Sian rebellion broke out all of a sudden. The central government was very shocked and our very national existence was threatened. It may be recalled that before my second visit to Shensi I perceived that perverse ideas had already entered the mind of the northeastern troops and that their conduct was rather wayward. Reports of a startling nature, such as that the troops were in collusion with the bandits and that they had retreated from the front without orders, repeatedly came to me. Some even went so far as to say that the troops were secretly plotting a rebellion.

My opinion was that the foundation for national unity had already been laid; that the northeastern troops, under conditions created by our national crisis, might have given occasion for the expression of unorthodox views, but that, if they were given sound and earnest advice, they would realize the importance of our national interests and all as one man would submit to authority.

Commanders Interviewed. We are all descendants of Hwang Ti (considered the ancestor of all Chinese). Only those who fail to understand our national policy would start subversive movements. Being their chief commander, I was responsible for their training and their discipline. My devotion to the party and the country made me disregard my own personal safety.

For these reasons I proceeded to Tungkuang from Loyang on December 4. There I sent for the commanders of the bandit suppression troops in Shensi and Kansu and received them one by one. I inquired about the conditions at the front and gave them my orders. I told them the bandit suppression campaign had been prosecuted to such a stage that it would require only the efforts of "the last five minutes" to achieve the final success. I urged them to perform their duty with courage and determination. We also discussed questions of strategy, and I explained to them my views.

Judging them with an unprejudiced mind, I found that the commander of the northeastern troops (the army of Chang Tseuh-liang, formerly stationed in the northeast (Manchuria) and transferred to north China after the Japanese occupation of Manchuria) were loyal to the country and fully understood the principle of righteousness. I had not the slightest suspicion of their treachery. Unexpectedly a mutiny broke out, almost under the tip of my nose, and threatened my personal safety. As I had full confidence in them, I neglected to take precautions. For this I should blame myself and not others.

8 Years' Work Ruined.

The Sian rebellion has proved a great hindrance to the progress of the work of our national revolution. The results which had been achieved during the last eight years, and which would have been crowned with final success in a couple of weeks, or at most a month, were almost completely ruined. Inestimable damage has been done to national defense, to communications, and to the economic reconstruction work in the northwest.

Thus, several years' efforts of the government and the people, already taking shape, were retarded. It is impossible to restore in a short space of time local peace and order and reinstate a sense of security on the money market. Generally speaking, our national progress has reverted to a condition that prevailed three years ago. It is indeed deplorable if the Rebels have any conscience, some day they will realize that their unwarranted action should not be forgiven.

After my return to Nanking, Chinese and foreigners frequently approached me for particulars of my personal experience in the Sian rebellion. As I am a responsible member of the party and the government, I should not have allowed myself to be trapped in a full of Rebels. I am ashamed of my shortcomings and have no wish to appear to justify myself. Even if I give a plain statement of facts, still I am afraid that something may slip my memory. Moreover, people may suspect that I have exaggerated my own merits and the wickedness of others.

Responsibility Accepted. Although the Rebels did not treat me as their chief, I cannot deny that they are my subordinates, and, therefore, I accept full responsibility for the outrages committed by them. In telling the story, I place the blame squarely on my own shoulders. Since my friends and comrades are eager for detailed information concerning this incident, I hereby, instead of frequently repeating the story, extract from my diary the main facts concerning my personal experience and the thoughts that were in my mind during those troublous days. This, I fear, may reveal my lack of ability as a statesman and as a military commander.

December 11.—This morning, while I was walking in the compound, I noticed two men on the Lishan mountain, standing looking at me for about 10 minutes. The incident struck me as singular. As I returned to my quarters, I noticed many military trucks proceeding east on the Sian-Lintung highway. As it was my office hour, I entered my office and paid no attention to the matter.

Li Tien-tsai (head of intelligence work under Chang Hsueh-liang) suddenly called and requested an interview. As he had made no appointment, I was rather surprised at his unexpected call. During the interview Li expressed his doubt as to the wisdom of the bandit suppression policy. His views were the same as those of Chang, expressed to me the day before. Finding that his mind had been very much poisoned, I reprimanded him severely.

That night I invited, among others, Chang Hsueh-liang, Yang Hu-chen and Yu Hsueh-chung to my headquarters to dine with me and discuss plans for bandit suppression. Yang and Yu did not come. On inquiry, Han-chen (Chang Hsueh-liang) informed me that he was one of the hosts at a dinner given that night at Sian in honor of the high civil and military officials of the central government who were on a visit to Sian, that Yang and Yu were at Sian to entertain the guests, and that, after the dinner here, he would accompany my other guests to Sian.

Han-chen Uneasy.

I was rather surprised at Han-chen's uneasy manner and the apparent distraction of his mind, and thought that he might have been displeased at my reprimand on the previous day or that he had heard that Li Tien-tsai had been rebuked by me.

December 12.—At 5:30 a. m., when I was dressing after my exercise, I heard gun-firing just in front of the gate of my headquarters. I sent one of my bodyguards to see what was the matter, but as he did not come back to report, I sent two others out and then heard gun firing again, which continued incessantly. Thereupon I felt that the northeastern troops had revolted.

On this visit to Shensi I had only my personal bodyguards and 20 uniformed soldiers. The soldiers who had been put on guard duty outside my headquarters were Chang's bodyguards. Presently Lieutenant Mao sent a messenger to report that a mutiny had broken out and that they had already reached the second gate, but that, from telephone communication with the barracks behind the mountain, he learned there was nothing untoward in evidence.

I asked where Lieutenant Mao was and was told he was at the front compound near the bridge, directing the bodyguards. The messenger said that Mao begged me to proceed first to the mountain at the back of my quarters. I asked what the mutinous troops looked like, and was told they had on fur caps and belonged to the northeastern troops.

Accompanied by Tso Pei-chi, one of my own guard officers, and Chiang Hsiao-chung, an aide-de-camp, I started for the mountain at the back of the house. After crossing the Fei Hung bridge, we found the eastern side door securely locked. We then scaled the wall, which was only about 10 feet high.

But just outside the wall, there was a deep moat, the bottom of which was about 30 feet below the top of the wall. As it was still dark, I missed my footing and fell into the moat. I felt a bad pain and was unable to rise.

Small Temple Reached. About three minutes later, I managed to stand up and walked with difficulty. After having walked several tens of paces, we reached a small temple, where some of my bodyguards were on duty. They helped me to climb the mountain.

At that time I was under the impression that the mutiny was local, that only a section of the troops at Lintung had mutinied, possibly at the instigation of the Communist bandits, and that it was not a preconcerted plot planned by Han-chen. I also thought that, if the whole of the northeastern army was in revolt, my headquarters would have been completely surrounded. The absence of mutinous troops outside the wall further convinced me that the mutiny was local.

I believed that, if we could cross the hill and wait for daybreak, the trouble would be over. On the eastern side of this hill there was no path, but we considered it was not safe to go west, as we might meet the mutinous troops on that side. So we proceeded east. There were precipitous cliffs on which we fumbled about for a hold as we climbed. After about half an hour we reached the mountain top and sat down on a piece of level ground for a short rest. I sent a bodyguard to a cliff before us to reconnoiter. Presently gun firing was heard on all sides. Bullets whizzed by quite close to me. Some of the bodyguards were hit and fell dead. I then realized that I was surrounded, that the mutiny was not local and that the whole of the northeastern troops took part in it. So I decided not to take shelter but to go back to my headquarters and see what could be done.

I Walked Down Mountain.

I walked down the mountain as quickly as I could. Half-way down the mountain, I fell into a cave which was overgrown with thorny shrubs and in which there was barely enough space to admit me. I felt exhausted. Twice I struggled to my feet, but fell down again. I was compelled to remain there for a rest and to wait for further developments.

As the day gradually dawned, I could see from the cave that the Lishan mountain was surrounded by a large number of troops. Then I heard the detonation of machine-guns and hand grenades near my headquarters. I knew that my faithful bodyguards at the headquarters continued their resistance and that the Rebels were using artillery to attack them. It was about 9 o'clock, after which time no more firing could be heard. The Rebels sought for me. Twice they passed the cave in which I took cover, but failed to discover me.

About 20 or 30 feet from my refuge I heard someone hotly arguing with the Rebels. It was Chiang Hsiao-chung, an aide de camp. The Rebels made a more thorough search. I heard one of the mutinous soldiers above the cave saying, "Here is a man in civilian dress; probably he is the generalissimo." Another soldier said, "Let us first fire a shot." Still another said, "Don't do that." I then raised my voice and said, "I am the generalissimo. Don't be disrespectful. If you regard me as your prisoner, kill me, but don't subject me to indignities." The mutineers said, "We don't dare." They fired three shots into the air and shouted, "The generalissimo is here!"

Decides to Go to Sian.

Sun Chung-chai, a battalion commander, then approached me. He knelt before me with tears in his eyes and requested me to go down the mountain. Then I knew that the soldiers attacking the headquarters belonged to the second battalion of Chang's bodyguards. Sun accompanied me down the mountain. When we reached my headquarters, I intended to go in for a rest. I saw through the doorway that things were in great disorder and the ground was strewn with dead bodies.

Sun asked me to go by motor car to Sian. He said my room was already in a state of confusion and that he had received orders from his superiors to invite me to Sian. I ordered Sun to find the deputy commander (Chang Hsueh-liang), who he said was in Sian waiting for me. He added: "We don't dare to mutiny against our superior officers; we wish to make a personal representation to your excellency concerning national affairs. I hope your excellency will kindly grant our request."

To this I shouted in anger. "Hold your tongue, you Rebels! If you want to kill me, kill me right now!" Sun and the commander of the second brigade of the 105th division saluted once again and requested me to board the car for the city. As I wanted to see Chang Hsueh-liang and find out from him what all this meant, I entered the car.

(To be Continued Tomorrow.)

HULA DANCER BURNED WHEN SKIRT BLAZES

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 21.—(AP)—A 22-year-old hula dancer, Mae Perdue, was burned critically early today when her grass skirt caught fire as she performed among patrons of a waterfront cafe.

Converted suddenly into a flaming torch, the girl's screams drowned out the Hawaiian melody of the orchestra. Police jailed Mathew Donahue, 57, a mechanic, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon while they investigated whether a match was touched to the girl's tinder-dry costume.

Dr. C. J. Ryan said Miss Perdue suffered third-degree face and body burns.

TURPENTINE GROUP PLANS ADVERTISING

Association Names Directors at Annual Meeting in Valdosta.

VALDOSTA, Ga., April 21.—(AP) Delegates to the first annual convention of the American Turpentine Farmers' Association, held here today, drafted a program for national advertising of turpentine and development of the scope of its uses.

Harley Langdale, president of the association, which is headquartered here, said reports of the organization's first year were encouraging.

Several hundred delegates from the Carolinas to Texas attended. Directors for the ensuing year as elected by districts include: 1. Georgia: Harley Langdale, J. B. Davis, Albany; J. E. D. Baxley and R. M. Reynolds, Bridge. 2. Florida and Alabama: M. Stallworth, Mobile; J. T. Milinterlachen, Fla.; W. H. Leon Blounttown, Fla. 3. Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas: R. M. Newton, Wigg Mississippi. 4. The Carolinas: W. L. Rhoads, Estill, S. C.

The naval stores men discuss the matter of sponsoring research to develop new uses for turpentine.

A survey indicates that 75 cent of children in public school wear outgrown shoes.

UNWANTED ESCAPER LANGUISHES IN JAIL

Scarborough Desire To Return to Lowndes Gang Blocked by County.

The State Prison Commission yesterday awaited a formal answer from Lowndes county before assigning S. J. (Slim) Scarborough, murderer and escape artist to another chain gang camp.

Lowndes county authorities announced at Valdosta Tuesday that they did not want Scarborough and the prison commission said he would be sent elsewhere. Yesterday Commissioner V. L. Stanley said that no disposition would be made of Scarborough until the letter from Lowndes county arrives.

Meanwhile, Scarborough is being held in the Fulton Tower here.

Killed Professor.

The prisoner, with Ted Coggeshall and Floyd McClellan, 10 years ago, killed Professor J. C. Wright, of Eaton, after the aged school official had picked them up on the highway. Coggeshall and McClellan were put to death in the electric chair but Scarborough, because of his youth and because he turned state's evidence, was let off with a life sentence. He has escaped several times, his last being from the Cherokee county gang several weeks ago. He surrendered here last week.

Solitary confinement for unruly prisoners was recommended yesterday by Judge Stanley to wardens who object to the abolishment of stocks.

"We have written to the wardens of the 130 prison camps in the state," Stanley said, "advising them to construct isolated, dark buildings in which prisoners can be placed without contact with anyone."

Punishment Effective.

"Some of our wardens already have adopted the system of punishment and find it very effective," the county commissioners of the state, meeting recently in Augusta.

THE PRESIDENT'S ECONOMY PLEA

The plea for governmental economy contained in President Roosevelt's message to congress will not only receive universal approval, but, far more important, it will serve to counteract the doubt and pessimism as to the future still felt by an unfortunately large percentage of the business interests of the country.

For seven and a half years the United States government has been in the red—operating on borrowed money—with billions being piled upon billions in the expenditures for relief and special functions of government in addition to the ordinary expenditures of governmental administration.

Naturally, business, despite the booming and profitable trade now being enjoyed practically in every community of the country, has remained uncertain as to what the future might hold.

With the volume of trade in both business and industry reaching record proportions, and with federal taxes higher, and larger, than ever before, the people are informed that the government revenue is still not large enough to permit a balancing of the budget.

Naturally, business is asking if the government's budget cannot be balanced under present conditions, under what conditions can it be balanced?

It is not surprising that President Roosevelt, with his customary directness and earnestness, meets this unsound and threatening situation with a demand that the spending which he has advocated so earnestly in the past, both for the relief of the suffering and to "prime" business, be brought immediately and definitely within the anticipated revenues of the next fiscal year.

The President pledges that he will use every means at his command "to eliminate the deficit during the coming fiscal year," and emphasizes upon congress that "I regard it as extremely important that we should achieve a balance of actual income and outgo for the fiscal year 1938, and I appeal to you to join me in a determined effort to bring about that result."

In further stressing his position, the President says: "I am convinced that the success of our whole program and the permanent security of our people demand that we adjust all expenditures within the limits of my budget estimate."

President Roosevelt boldly strikes at the evil chiefly responsible for the constantly mounting cost of government in the statement that—

It is a matter of concern to you and to me who are working for a balanced budget that so many special groups exert the strongest pressure to bring about increases in government expenditures. They pay little attention to the fact that the budget, as submitted, represents a co-ordinated fiscal program and that material departures therefrom destroy the whole purpose of the program. If we are to avoid a continuation of deficits, we must resist these importunities or provide the necessary revenues to meet the increasing costs.

It is probable that the greater part of the amount President Roosevelt warns must be trimmed from the present spending program will come from the billion and a half allocated for relief.

If the necessary savings cannot be effected from the appropriations for other governmental activities, there is little danger that there will be serious protest. Radical organizations which are attempting to inflame the unfortunate who are still on relief may endeavor to create widespread dissension, but they will meet with little success.

It has been convincingly established that the mass of the people of America, representing every class of our citizenship, favors the transfer of relief activities as rapidly as possible from the federal government to the states and to individual communities.

In years gone by each community cared for its unemployed and its unemployable. That is the only sound and economic way in which the problem of relief can be handled.

Under federal control of relief, there has inevitably been waste and ill-judged direction.

It is irrefutable that a local community can know better how to administer relief to its unfortunate than a government which cannot, in the very nature of things, be posted as to the needs of each separate community in the country.

It is to be hoped that the President's message to congress will mark the advent of a positive and definite program of reduced expenditures by the federal government. The "priming" billions that have been spent during the past four years have played a vital part in rescuing the country from its helpless position in the morass of economic collapse. But the time has now come for the line of this spending to stop climbing and start down hill again.

The country will take hope in the fact that the President himself takes the lead in telling congress and the various departments of the government that the era of spending must be ended.

FAR-FLUNG BENEFITS

Potentialities inherent in the proposal made by Chancellor S. V. Sanford to the Board of Regents of the University System to establish a post-graduate school at the University of Georgia in Athens are so far-reaching as to warrant universal approval of the proposal.

Should such courses be offered at the university it will mean that, for the first time, advanced students will be able to win their Ph.D. degree without going to an institution outside of Georgia.

Immediate benefit to the state is self-evident in the fact that such a development in education in Georgia should result in keeping at home many of her finest young people, the boys and girls with the best mental equipment of the rising generation who hitherto have been forced to go to other states for that desired post-graduate study, after they have completed their regular undergraduate work in Georgia.

Such young people, once established in some other state, are too apt to become weaned from their own home and to build their future lives as citizens of other commonwealths.

Such post-graduate work would also contribute to social, scientific and economic advancement in Georgia through the research that would be done by the seekers after higher degrees. It is from post-graduate seekers after truths that many of the most valuable contributions to modern life have come.

Unquestionably, the establishment of the post-graduate school will attract students from other states.

The benefits of such a step, should it be taken, will be cumulative, in ever-increasing ratio, through the years and generations to come.

BROADENING JAUNTS

At this time of the year many high school classes arrange to visit Washington, the national capital, and other points of historic and topical interest of our country. World-famous ground is trodden by the eager feet of the rising generation and scenes hallowed in the hearts of all Americans are impressed upon the minds of citizens to be.

Such a journey is an important event in school life. It must, inevitably, impress the worth of citizenship, together with its obligations, more forcefully than all the textbooks and lecture classes in the entire curricula.

Modern transportation ease, if it had done nothing else, would prove its worth in making possible these class pilgrimages. For the result cannot be anything else than finer citizenship, greater respect for the nation's law, history and institutions, and a corresponding decrease in youthful crime and youthful mistake.

Adolescence gazing upon the graves of the nation's hero dead at Arlington, upon the halls of legislation or the sanctum of the supreme court, is not apt to become maturity that will bring shame upon its heritage.

Days of daring and years of adventure are not altogether of the past. Think of the chuckles of commanders and crews of those two British merchantmen who successfully ran the Rebel blockade and brought food to the starving Loyalists besieged in Bilbao and Gijon.

A cable item has an Italian hen laying 20 eggs a day, while a WPA worker at St. Louis lays 58 bricks a minute. Our credulity is being tried on every hand.

How different things would be, if Ponce de Leon had found that fountain of youth. We could dunk our justices.

French authorities are considering the use of a laughing gas to quell angry mobs. Scores of our radio comics will want to know of this.

It would be deplorable and all that if it turned out that El Duce's boys left their fight in the Ethiopian gymnasium.

All but a handful of Florida counties have now outlawed slot machine gambling, as it didn't seem to improve the breed of slot machine.

Editorial of the Day

COURAGE ON THE HIGH PLAINS

(From the Kansas City Star.)
Kansas farmers and ranchmen, left to themselves, can be depended upon eventually to work out their own salvation, no matter how severe is the test they must face.

This is illustrated by the recent meeting of the lamb feeders at Garden City, in the so-called dust bowl area. The land will come back and it will be brought back by revegetating certain areas and returning them to stock raising, the feeders were told by Dean L. E. Call, of Kansas State College. The state experiment stations are now busy working on the problem of regressing and hope for a solution.

In the meantime, western Kansas is proving out the idea of lamb growing as a profitable enterprise. Alfred Ward, of Stanton county, told how a sorghum crop, all but ruined by the drought, had fattened a herd of lambs at good profit, and then with its stalks remaining on the ground had prevented the field from blowing.

There is a spirit of courage and co-operation manifest in the high plains, as few places know it. Farmer, banker, merchant and worker alike are uniting to beat the problem of soil blowing. With such co-ordinated effort, western Kansas will go far toward maintaining its tradition of never having been whipped.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON.

TYPE WASHINGTON, April 21.—Mr. R. wrote his budget argument to congress in type of normal size, LIKE THIS, but he attached a proving table of figures printed in sensationally fine type, LIKE THIS.

The figures were certainly too small for elderly legislators to read with their aging eyes, but some of the younger congressmen could make them out with the use of glasses. Their conclusion was that perhaps the figures should have been in even smaller type. The specific estimates disclosed far less promise of expenditure curtailment than did the written message.

For one thing, these figures showed President Roosevelt's new budget on the whole is about $68,000,000 more than the one he submitted in January. Also, the appropriations he is seeking are only about 6 per cent less than the expenditures now contemplated this year.

The uncertainty in the face value of the figures is amply illustrated by one extreme instance:

Off-hand they appeared to show a curtailment of some $275,000,000 in the supplemental items of the revised budget, meaning the odds and ends of government expenses. The $450,000,000 total of the January budget was shown to be cut to $175,000,000 in the revised one.

But a footnote on another item (not on this one) indicates the new figure does not include CCC, as the old one did. This time CCC is listed separately. So, if you add in CCC, the $275,000,000 saving in the odds and ends estimates really is a $75,000,000 loss.

Instead of disclosing a disposition to curtail sharply, the odds and ends items really indicated a disposition to let things slide. The whole set of figures is more or less like that.

NUTSHELL Thus, the layman and the expert are likely to get two opposite conclusions about Mr. Roosevelt's proposition. The layman will note that the President "regards it as extremely important that we should achieve" a balanced budget next year, and is appealing to congress to help him. Analysts generally will agree that a balance is wholly improbable from the figures.

What Mr. Roosevelt seems to be doing now, in its simplest terms, devoid of elusive figures, is this:

He intends to hold down expenditures, not to cut appropriations. He intends to block extra-budgetary appropriations by congress this session to whatever extent he later may choose. He is saying to congress: "You go ahead and pass the appropriations bills for next year, limited to the amounts I told you last January, and I will try to balance the budget by spending less than you appropriate, and by picking up some money on refunds received by the government on RFC loans, etc."

The whole implication clearly is one of "spending no more than necessary" rather than "active curtailment." The budget is still on the basis of "need," rather than income.

Mr. Roosevelt is taking a less serious view of his budgetary situation than Federal Reserve Board Chairman Eccles has taken, for instance. All hopes of a real reduction in relief appropriations is over for another year at least. Those who are clamoring for a balance, Mr. Roosevelt is merely saying:

"Just leave it to me."

DETERMINATION Strictly under your hat, two of Mr. Roosevelt's legislative consultants protested the tone of the message to him before it was delivered. They said the relief figure was too high, that he need not spend $1,500,000,000 together with the money he will have left over from this year. They counseled him to cut the figure to a flat billion just for the sake of appearances. It would have a beneficial effect, to show he meant business.

This and several other less important recommendations of the consultants were turned down cold. As a result, there is likely to be an unexpected and unusual inside movement in congress to re-adjust the figures submitted by the President in several ways.

REASON The officially whispered explanation of the President's stand is that he was caught between two fires. The governors and the mayors out in the country have been doing everything in their power to keep the federal treasury grab-bag open for themselves. The state and city officials wanted $2,000,000,000 for relief. A small group of the house is propagandizing for $2,400,000,000, or some such sum.

The President apparently decided to take the middle course again. It would appear he landed about halfway between the pork barrel crriers and the budget balancers, thereby satisfying no one, and clearing nothing.

Some Good Citizens.

Walking to the car line yesterday morning noticed several incidents that brought, all together, the thought that the place is just full of good citizens.

First of all there was the acquaintance who, not having a job at the moment, was decently busy helping around the house. Sweeping the front porch as I passed. He called a cheery good morning and added a few more kind words that help a lot to get the day started right.

A little further up the hill noticed a negro boy, about eighteen, walking ahead of me. Looked like a typical, carefree, probably penniless, young colored man.

There was a stick of wood lying in the roadway, somewhat of a menace to passing autoists. The boy in front casually stepped out, picked it up and chucked it onto a vacant lot.

Thoughtful? Yes, and considerate of others. But done in a thoughtful, unselfish way. Wondered, though, how many of us would make the slight effort to do such a thing, or would realize there was danger of a wrecked car in that piece of wood.

The Fledgling That Fell.

Two more negroes, older men this time, provided the third example of the innate decency of mankind.

These fellows attracted attention because of their evident interest in something near the sidewalk curbing. Closer, found it was a young bird, a fledgling, not strong enough to fly. It had fallen from a nest and was fluttering on the ground, in imminent danger of death under passing car wheels or at the paws of some predatory cat.

One of the negroes carefully lifted the frightened bird in his hands and held it, ever so gently, while the other climbed a nearby tree. Then the man on the ground passed the bird to his friend and the man in the tree restored it, with utmost care, to the nest. And they strolled on about their business, grinning and laughing together.

When Business Interferes With Fun.

Lady of my acquaintance was describing her experiences in a local millinery establishment. Said there were only two clerks in the place and the one who waited on her seemed extremely impatient. Girl tried to discourage the prospective customer from trying on the hat and told her bluntly, "that isn't what you want," half a dozen times. Finally, when the clerk's impatience became too pronounced, my friend asked, with sarcasm, if there was any serious objection to her selecting and buying a hat, and the clerk replied, "Well, that's my boy friend."

She indicated a restive man waiting by the entrance door. "He's

A New Move In Europe.

DALLAS, Texas.—The German government, upon the admission of Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, is strictly observing the provisions of the international non-intervention agreement in Spain. There are at present no more than 8,000 German soldiers in Spain, mainly at the bases and serving as instructors and pilots of the Rebel forces.

Word now comes from London that Italy and Russia have agreed to ban discussions for the withdrawal of their volunteers from the two fronts. At the same time comes news that the great powers are now convinced that General Franco cannot win without foreign support. It is a little late in Spain for such a conclusion. For without Hitler's and Mussolini's help, it is obvious General Franco's revolt would never have grown beyond the borders of Spanish Morocco.

It is also clear that the Valencia government, by stimulating the production of war material in the chief industrial regions of Spain, which remain in its hands, and by training an entirely new army the last six months, is getting into a new stride for offensive tactics. The balance, in other words, is tipping over in favor of the so-called Loyalists. Behind this is secret diplomatic pressure on the part of France. France has made Rome understand that it will not permit Spain to become a war base in the hands of Franco, at the service of Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler.

Unless some new surprises enter into play or some more word-breaking occurs on the part of the statesmen, the Spanish civil war seems to have entered upon its final phase. There is much talk of a foreign effort to bring about a cessation of hostilities. Curiously enough one hears less and less about Mussolini's determination not to permit a "red" dictatorship to rule the Spanish peninsula, probably because everybody has grown convinced that no such thing as a necessary end, we were for it. But now that the end is achieved we can see neither need nor excuse for the disruption. The supreme court, under whatever persuasions or processes of thought, has committed itself now to interpretations of interstate commerce and "due process" of law which make it impossible for the President to adapt America's modern government to America's modern economy. He should be content with the revolution and not reflect on his victory by denying its adequacy.

When a war has suddenly and unexpectedly been won, it is folly to carry on the battle upon which the war's outcome was thought to depend. When a great end has been achieved or made possible, it is not possible to hope longer for support of the means directed solely to that end. The President has won a great victory. It is time now for him to safeguard what he has won against abuse, to make sure of wisdom and moderation in its use.

We envy those who are able to find hope in any sort of federal aid to farm tenants and sharecroppers and to believe that the wrong sort of aid may lead to the right sort. To our way of thinking the educational features of any tenable farm tenancy plan are so indispensable that any money-lending scheme which does not involve them is a money-wasting scheme.

In Jackson, Miss., the other day, we had the pleasure of meeting J. B. Tigrett, president of the Gulf, Mobile and Northern Railway, and hearing from him many an interesting tale of men and things. The most interesting of all was the story of how fond Huey Long came to be of Vanderbilt's late great Dan McGuffin in the course of Huey's triumph for football. In many respects it would be hard to imagine two men with less in common than the Louisiana dictator and the Tennessee sportsman-lawyer, but Mr. Tigrett, who knew both men well, says Senator Long liked Mr. McGuffin so much that he often made a confidant of him.

Mr. Tigrett is interesting, too, when he tells of the furious opposition he encountered in some southern quarters when he decided to name his company's crack train "The Rebel." Part of the opposition, he discovered later, was based on a notion that he was a northerner reflecting upon the political status of the War Between the States. When he was able to advise a protesting group of lad that his birthplace was Friendsburg, Tenn., and that his father had been a Confederate soldier, the opposition softened. He thinks, and agrees with him, that "Rebel" is a fine name to call anything or anybody.

All over Florida now, we find the "thousands of bandits" thrill and thrums of otherwise nature: lovers and health—lovers are so busy being held up by bandits that they have no time to think about the things they are supposed to love. "Bandit" is the name these slot machines, beyond doubt. We have yet to see any body taken from him eventually. We speak bitterly it is because won 18 nickels on our first try the other day and spent the following days losing several times nickels.

A Proud Slave Doesn't Risk His Life to Save a Master Who Beats Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

If an individual has pledged himself to support an institution is he obligated to remain loyal when the institution turns against him?

That question must be answered before we can solve one of our gravest social problems.

America's "greatest traitor" was a brave and gallant patriot who shed his blood for the cause of liberty and gave loyal service to envious politicians unwisely trusted with power rewarded him with neglect and ingratitude. Then in bitter resentment he turned against those who had turned against him.

In a free land such as ours there is an unwritten contract between each individual and his country, his neighbors and his kin. It says, in effect: "If you will treat me fairly, I will treat you fairly."

All of us are aware of the contract, but we are prone to forget that all parties to an agreement are equally bound by it. Neither in law nor in equity is one party to a contract obligated to keep a promise that is violated by the other. If one party fails to render a promised service, is the other obligated to pay for it?

When a good citizen becomes a bad citizen, he has violated his contract with his neighbors and thus has forfeited his right to their consideration. They may jail him with a clear conscience. But what if they have first violated the contract?

Unless your childhood was exceptionally happy, or your sensibilities exceptionally dull, you can remember times when you parents or other relatives, your teachers or other persons in authority treated you unfairly. Being a mere kid, you had no recourse. You were helpless.

You felt abused and your heart was filled with sullen rebellion. The world was against you. And a few more licks, plus the sympathy of another rebel, would have made you an enemy of all law and authority.

Any kid who is persistently and continually ridiculed, shamed, abused, ignored or unfairly dealt with is a criminal in the making. The world has violated its contract with him and he is aware of no obligation.

Crime, like disease, is best prevented by removing the cause.

The task isn't hopeless. If you had the time, money and authority, couldn't you take charge of one mistreated, misguided and rebellious kid and give him a fair deal? If it can be done for one it can be done for a million. All it takes is the realization that the crop most deserving of government aid is citizens.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Let the victors when they call Find your body by the wall."

But if you yourself are the victor—and in epoch-making degree—it is quixotic to go on talking and acting in a body-by-the-wall spirit. The more the column keeps quiet and tries to think about the matter, the more impressed it is with the mistake the President seems to be making in holding fast to his supreme court plan now that the reasons for it are, in the most fundamental sense, removed. So long as the plan was, in our opinion, the least disruptive way to accomplish a necessary end, we were for it. But now that the end is achieved we can see neither need nor excuse for the disruption. The supreme court, under whatever persuasions or processes of thought, has committed itself now to interpretations of interstate commerce and "due process" of law which make it impossible for the President to adapt America's modern government to America's modern economy. ### HOLDS COUNTY OFFICIALS IN CLEAR ON STATE TAXES

Editor Constitution: News accounts of the report of the state auditor would lead the public to believe that the counties of the state are indebted to the state in excess of $3,000,000. The taxpayers are indebted to the state over the years enumerated in the audit in excess of $3,000,000, but not the counties. The taxpayers are likewise indebted to the counties, to the schools, and to the municipalities in very much larger amounts. Such articles give county government in this state a black eye.

The county tax officials do not owe the state this money. They have not collected it.

Neither the counties nor the county officials owe this money to the state as it has not been collected from the taxpayers. All of the 159 counties of the state should not suffer for the sins of a few incompetent county officials if there are such.

Editor Constitution: For the past few weeks I have been greatly interested in your new A. P. feature, "The World This Week," which appears in your Sunday issue.

It is a most concise and vivid portrayal of current events and I want to convey to you my most sincere commendation for this very valuable addition to the paper.

I am using it as a teaching aid in my economics and government classes. Furthermore, I have thought so well of it I have called to the attention of other teachers in the social sciences. I hope you will continue this feature.

DRIVERS TESTS MET WITH SUCCESS

Editor Constitution: Please accept our sincere thanks for your valuable co-operation in connection with the recent drivers' tests which we put on at 56 Peachtree street.

This event was a huge success. In fact, we actually had more motorists desiring to go through these tests than we were able to handle.

In a number of instances motorists were unaware of weak eyes, low reaction time and a number of other unknown weaknesses that necessarily effect their driving. In most instances these people took tests to eliminate such weaknesses or promised to correct driving habits to compensate.

Former Governor, Repudiated Last Fall, To Broadcast Denunciation of Plans.

C. B. BISHOP.

Secretary-Manager Atlanta Motor Club, Atlanta, Ga., April 17, 1937.

AS TO SERVICES OF CITY ATTORNEY

Editor Constitution: I keenly doubt the propriety of the city attorney representing any organization whose interests conflict with those of the city.

On Monday night he appeared before the finance committee of city council representing the Atlanta Federation of Trades, who are attempting to have the pay cuts of city employees restored. Regardless of the merits of the proposition, he was called upon to give an opinion by the chairman of the committee concerning the legality of the firemen's pay cut and yet he was representing an organization of which the firemen's union is a member.

It seems to me that the salary of the city attorney is sufficient for him not to be forced to seek outside employment, especially when the interests of his client will conflict with those of the city.

GRAY M'CALLEY, 60, PASSES IN HOSPITAL

Prominent Business and Fraternal Leader Succumbs to Long Illness.

Gray McCalley, well known in southern business, fraternal and philanthropic circles, died yesterday afternoon at a private hospital.

Mr. McCalley, who was manager of the Joseph Tetter Tea Company, had been ill since last Christmas and entered the hospital about three weeks ago. He was 60 and unmarried.

He lived at the Atlanta Athletic Club, being one of the first occupants of the building when the present town house was opened by the club several years ago.

He was a member of Washington Centennial lodge, F. & A. M., Washington, D. C.; Atlanta Consistory of Scottish Rite Masons; Yaarab Shrine temple and the Atlanta Masonic Club. He was also a member of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Mr. McCalley was a native of Fredericksburg, Va., and a member of a pioneer family of that city. He had been associated with the Tetter firm for 26 years, coming to Atlanta in 1911, when district offices were established here.

Surviving are five brothers, Archie McCalley, of Richmond; Lawrence McCalley, of Baltimore; George and Harvey McCalley, both of Fredericksburg, and Herbert McCalley, of Sanford, Fla.

Final rites will be held at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill, with Dr. J. Spole Lyons officiating. Burial will be in Richmond, where the body will be taken tonight, with Masonic graveside rites.

HEIMANN TO SPEAK AT JOINT MEETING

National Credit Executives Will Address Four Groups Tonight.

Henry M. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, will address a joint meeting of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men, the Chamber of Commerce, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Freight Bureau at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel.

Mr. Heimann is a former member of the Industrial Advisory Board under Hugh Johnson. He has twice been offered the post of assistant secretary of commerce by the present administration. He was also a member of the long-range Business Advisory and Planning Group of the Department of Commerce.

His visit coincides with the opening of a drive by the Atlanta Credit Association for increased membership and broadening of the services offered by the local group.

DENTAL COLLEGE PLEA IS GRANTED

Temporary Injunction Barring Clinic Fees Rescinded Pending Further Hearing

The Atlanta Southern Dental College can continue to collect fees for denture work performed in its clinic until Saturday, at least, it was declared yesterday when Superior Judge John D. Humphries rescinded a temporary injunction against the school which Tuesday was granted by Judge James C. Davis.

A hearing on the injunction was set for Saturday.

The action was brought in the name of the Governor and the Fifth District Dental Society through Paul Lindsay as special attorney general. It alleges the school, as a corporation, is practicing dentistry in violation of the state law and that teachers and students are accepting fees for their services.

Persons who cannot afford to pay regular dental fees to dentists are treated at the college and charged an amount sufficient to cover costs of materials used, William G. Grant, counsel for the college, maintained. He cited a supreme court ruling that held such charges are lawfully made.

Former Governor Talmadge will lead the fight on the constitutional amendments, embodying the program of his successor, Governor Rivers, it was learned yesterday as Talmadge made a contract for time over an Atlanta radio station following a blast at the Rivers program in his periodical newspaper, the Statesman.

Neither the radio station nor Talmadge announced the series of speeches Talmadge and others plan against the amendments, but it was established authoritatively that the former Governor would be the chief spoke in the opposition wheel and that a number of political leaders who went down with him in defeat last year would join in the speeches.

In his newspaper Talmadge called upon the people to "vote against every constitutional amendment" on June 8. Rivers previously had called for support of his program and has announced that he will make a series of speeches in support of the amendments.

Talmadge made it clear he thought the general election, sponsored by Rivers administration leaders, is illegal.

He said the Georgia constitution provided for a general election in November—not in June—and the present little crowd in the state capitol is diverting the law, and trying to slip across a trick to tax the people of this state white.

Talmadge said the administration program "is the program of the politicians who are in control of the state of Georgia, who want to raise billions of dollars to build up a political machine to perpetuate themselves in office."

"If all of the constitutional amendments are adopted on June 8, the general assembly will think that the people want to be swayed, and they like to be taxed."

"If the constitutional amendments are killed, the present administration in Georgia, and the general assembly will wake up to the fact that the people of Georgia do not intend robbery in the name of taxation."

LOCAL OPTIMISTS TO MEET TONIGHT

Charter of New Atlanta Group To Be Presented at Banquet.

More than 350 members, guests and visitors will attend the charter day banquet of the Atlanta Optimist Club at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Biltmore hotel.

Dr. Harold Monger, of Knoxville, vice president of Optimist International, will present the local group with its charter, making the Atlanta chapter a part of the international organization.

J. Glen Hailey, mayor pro tem., will preside. Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield are slated to attend. Speakers, in addition to the Governor and mayor, will be Roy LeCraw, Dr. Monger and Morgan Blake.

Optimist Club officials from all over the south will attend the dinner.

COERCING WORKERS CHARGED TO UNIONS BY MANUFACTURERS

National Work Relations Act Is Inadequate, They Assert.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—The National Association of Manufacturers tonight urged labor unions to accept legal responsibility for their acts and recognize that coercion of employees into joining unions is as wrong as coercion to keep them out of unions.

"The welfare of the public must receive continuous consideration," the association said in a statement. "Resistance to extreme and arbitrary demands which threaten to skyrocket prices is a shield for the consumer."

"It is and has been a mistake to assume that manufacturing employers deny the right of their employees to organize and negotiate collectively," the association added. "But we also recognize the right of an employee to decline to associate himself with any organization and continue to sell his services as he sees fit, without intimidation or coercion from any source."

The association charged that "the national labor relations act is inadequate with respect to protection given employees who do not desire to belong to unions, and to the public, since it affords no protection against violence, coercion and illegal acts upon the part of organized labor."

16 organizers had been sent into that zone. He indicated it would be the most vigorous attempt in history to unionize a field which is sometimes known as "bloody Harlan."

National unions have never been able to obtain a permanent foothold there, and the La Follette civil liberties committee of the senate is now airing charges that company-paid deputies have stamped out previous unionization attempts with a reign of terrorism.

Turnblazer said additional men would be sent in "as fast as we can bring them from other parts of the country."

"Law of the Land." He declared the organizers had posted notices in mining territory that "the Wagner act is now the law of the land, and has been upheld by the United States supreme court."

Directorate of Associated Press Increased as Two Members Are Added

Two new members were added to the Associated Press' board of directors at the recent meeting in New York. Also elected to membership was Clark Howell, president and publisher of The Constitution, to succeed his father, the late Clark Howell Sr., who was one of the original directors of the far-flung news-gathering agency, organized shortly after the turn of the century.

cently any inflationary expansion of bank credit. "Neither does there appear to be any prospect of such developments in the future."

The report was made public after having been read to the council in executive session. Leonard Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, is chairman of the Economics Policy Commission.

"American business is moving ahead so vigorously," said the report, "that fears are being expressed in official circles and by economic writers that boom conditions may be impending, and that inflationary prices may develop."

"Almost all such discussions involve consideration of the expansion of bank credit, and most of them devote attention to measures which might be taken to avoid any unduly rapid creation of bank credit."

Real Estate Loans Low.

"The developments of this recovery period up to this time have demonstrated that in so far as the issue of bank credit is concerned this period is fundamentally different from the recovery period from 1921 to 1929. During all of the earlier period building construction went forward in large volume and the real estate loans of member banks increased from a little over one billion dollars in 1921 to over three billions in 1929. The increase amounted to 183 per cent."

"By contrast in this period building construction has increased by 145 per cent from 1933 to the end of 1936, and meanwhile real estate loans of member banks have increased less than 2 per cent. Clearly no inflationary influence is now operating in the use of bank credit to finance new construction."

The report said that "clearly most of the building recovery is being financed by other than loan banks."

Danger Signs Absent. "If there are present monetary dangers of an inflationary sort in our banks they are to be found in the great increases in demand deposits largely resulting from government financing."

"These deposits cannot be readily subjected to reserve system control for they represent credit that has already been brought into existence. In the long run they are subject only to the self control that may be exercised by the governmental agencies responsible for bringing them into existence, and to that of the depositors who own them."

3 JAILED, DOZEN SOUGHT IN FAKE CLAIM RING

NEWARK, N. J., April 21.—(AP) Three men were jailed tonight and a dozen others sought as prosecutors' detectives rounded up what they described as a fake insurance ring that had inducted willing factory workers with lead poisoning so they could collect compensation.

A lawyer was questioned today and his records seized at his Jersey City office. Detective Lieutenant Dimond, of Prosecutor Wachenfeld's staff said.

A physician was sought as the man who cured the artificially induced lead poisoning cases after the symptoms became sufficient to warrant insurance claims, Dimond said.

MILLIONAIRE WINS CHORUS GIRL'S SUIT

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—Dorothy Sabine, former chorus girl, lost her suit today to force J. D. Wooster Lambert, St. Louis millionaire, to pay her $15,044.69 which she claimed was due for services as a financial advisor.

A federal jury, after deliberating an hour and a half, held there was no justification for her claim to $10,800 for supposedly unpaid monthly salary at $300 a month or to $4,244.63 as a commission on reported stock market tips.

Police School Urged To 'Lift' Department

A school for policemen will help lift the department out of a rut, Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby said yesterday at a round-table discussion of conditions in Atlanta, attended by Mayor Hartsfield and superior officers of the department.

Chief Hornsby said he highly favored the school, which will be conducted here for 30 days by Captain Phil Dorr, organizer of the Pennsylvania state highway police. In a brief talk, Captain Dorr said:

"It is my desire to elevate policemen from the comedy opinion now held by so many persons and make those persons look upon a policeman as a professional man."

Mayor Hartsfield also expressed favor with the school idea.

OLD MACHINES KEEP 15,000,000 IN JOBS

Official Says Farms With Good Equipment Could Drop 10,000,000.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.) WASHINGTON, April 21.—Obsolete and old-fashioned equipment is keeping 15,000,000 Americans in jobs that advanced technology could fill, a high government official revealed tonight.

As relief experts variously estimated the present number of unemployed at between 7,000,000 and 10,000,000, this official disclosed the gloomy possibility of more than double that number if up-to-date machinery were installed in all the nation's factories and farms.

This official, frequent presidential adviser, said that the nation's present supply of industrial goods could be produced with 5,000,000 fewer workers if the most efficient machinery were used. The present supply of agricultural products could be raised with 10,000,000 fewer persons on the nation's farm lands.

Senator Hugo L. Black, Democrat, Alabama, author of the compulsory 30-hour week bill, believes that only through such a shortening of the work week will it be possible to find work for all the 2,134,000 now on the rolls of the Works Progress Administration.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace believes that eventually technology will hit cotton just as hard as it has the cereal crops of the middle west.

"If the south adopted the tractor more generally, and got a successful picking machine, the effect on the population would be much more profound than any corresponding thing done in the middle west," he said recently.

CHINA CLIPPER STARTS ON REGULAR SERVICE

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 21.—(AP) Commercial air service to China began today with the departure of the China clipper on a regular trans-Pacific flight.

She carried three passengers, a large consignment of first flight covers for stamp collectors and light merchandise.

Upon arrival of the China clipper in Manila, the Hong Kong clipper, a new addition to the trans-Pacific air fleet, will pick up the stamp consignment and other commercial cargo and fly to Macao and Hong Kong.

RELIEF FUND RISE SOUGHT BY BLOC

city releases its donation" said Frank H. Neely, chairman of the public welfare board, yesterday.

Carpenter's Explanation. Carpenter held up the relief money, because, he declared, city employees had been "double-crossed" by not receiving restoration of basic pay.

A resolution introduced yesterday by Councilman J. Allen Couch, which sought to allocate only $150,000 to relief at the rate of $20,000 for the next three months and $15,000 a month thereafter, was defeated before councilmen voted to give $180,000. Couch's measure received the support of Carpenter, and Councilmen Cecil W. Hester, Howard Haire and Frank Wilson, but went down eight to five.

"It is my opinion that $150,000 will be enough to feed the hungry people because after the social security benefits passed in the amendments to be voted June 8, the federal and state governments will take fully 33 1-3 per cent of the load off the county and city," Couch asserted.

Couch's measure, $20,000 in April, May and June, and $15,000 after June, Councilman J. Frank Beck denied this would be enough, however, asserting the social security benefits will not care for but 23 per cent of the load and that machinery for this help cannot be set up for months.

Only Carpenter and Couch voted against the $180,000 paper, which was returned to general council at the special meeting because the aldermanic board Monday failed to concur in the action of council—only by a tie vote of 3 to 3. Couch asserted he conscientiously believed $150,000 would be sufficient but when Carpenter served notice of reconsideration, he sought ways to call a second special meeting of council to act upon the matter yesterday afternoon and thus open relief headquarters this morning.

Call All Ready.

The second special meeting could not be held immediately following yesterday's session because four members, Aldermen G. Dan Bridges and Roy Callaway, and Councilmen William Knight and C. M. (Mac) Bolan, were absent and could not be notified of the new call.

Hartsfield had the order for the special meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon already written out and it was read in council by City Clerk Joe Richardson a minute after Carpenter blocked release.

Carpenter called on city employees to help defeat the city's constitutional amendments if they are not given full basic pay restoration.

"Department heads now say they are not going to get as much from the increased taxes as they anticipated," he asserted. "This is not true. They knew to a dime what they would get and they know they are going to get it. You have got to restore salaries as of April 1 or the city employees will join with the taxpayers whose taxes were raised and they will defeat the amendments. I don't blame them, because they have been double-crossed." Carpenter declared. He said "I take great pleasure in voting 'no' to this paper" when he cast his vote on the $180,000 measure.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee which recommended $20,000 a month be given, said the relief investigation proved to him the necessity for giving as much as possible and he urged passage of the measure.

Voters for $150,000.

Councilmen Frank Wilson, Haire and Hester voted for the $150,000 paper, but changed to favor $180,000 when the first plan lost. Rules of procedure, as stated by City Attorney Jack Savage, gave the right of notice of reconsideration to one alderman or two councilmen in matters such as occupied council yesterday. The vote was so overwhelming.

Stork, Ambulance Run Tie Race Here

The stork rode an ambulance early yesterday morning when an 8 1-2 pound daughter was born to Mrs. O. H. Roper, of Route No. 6, Atlanta, just as the vehicle swung into the driveway of Grady hospital.

The race began when Roper telephoned the hospital for an ambulance to come to his home near the Chattahoochee river, 16 miles from Atlanta. S. C. Langley was at the wheel of the ambulance in the tie race.

The mother and child, Mrs. Roper's seventh, were reported doing well last night.

ly for release of the funds that Mayor Hartsfield and others were confident the paper will pass without difficulty today.

Alderman I. Gloer Hailey, mayor pro tem, who was one of three aldermen who voted against the release of $180,000 at the aldermanic board Monday, yesterday issued a statement scoring the board of public welfare for closing relief headquarters "on such a flimsy excuse."

Sees "Dastardly Trick."

"I cannot understand how men of the caliber of the members of the Board of Public Welfare of Fulton county could permit any one to do such a dastardly trick as to close the doors of the relief department and use for an excuse such a flimsy reason as they have used," he stated.

Declaring that Fulton county admits they have funds ready for relief and asserting everyone knows Atlanta will give its pro rata share, Hailey stated, "I want the good people of Atlanta to know this is merely another example of the methods of intimidation and coercion used to try and bend the will of conscientious persons who have the interest of all parties at heart."

He explained his vote in the aldermanic board was because an agreement had been made to allot $150,000 for relief and the paper sought to give an additional $30,000 "which means this amount would have to be taken from another department." He defended the efforts to restore salaries to city employees.

Alderman Hailey, presiding at council's session yesterday, did not cast a vote.

CONFERENCE DELAYED IN ALABAMA STRIKE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 21.—(AP)—Further negotiations seeking settlement of wage differences which have resulted in idleness for 20,000 Alabama coal miners were postponed tonight until William Mitch, district president of the United Mine Workers of America, returns to this city.

Mine operators said no joint meeting with miners "would be considered" until Mitch returns. In a letter to operators today, Mitch asked the full Appalachian increase of 50 cents a day for Alabama miners. Operators have offered approximately 35 cents a day increase.

EARLE, M'NUTT SEEN AS TICKET FOR 1940

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 21.—(AP)—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, said today a ticket of Governor Earle and Paul V. McNutt for president and vice president in 1940 was favored in the middle west.

"Much depends on the work of both these men before 1940," he added, "but today they are being talked of in my part of the country."

WEALTHY WIDOW, 78, IS FOUND MURDERED

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., April 21.—(UP)—Mrs. Mary Flannery, 78, widow of Patrick Flannery, wealthy East St. Louis building materials dealer, was found murdered today in her home here.

The woman's skull had been broken with a vinegar jug, according to Coroner Leo L. Madden. Her house had been ransacked.

BUS COMPARTMENT APPROVED IN S. C.

Senate Passes Bill to Separate Whites and Negroes in Vehicles.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 21.—(AP)—The senate passed a bill today to require separate compartments on buses for whites and negroes and sent it to Governor Johnston for his signature.

The senate also passed and ordered ratified a joint resolution calling for a study of the advisability of a retirement law for school teachers.

There was no indication when conferees would report out the appropriations and social security bills over which the two branches have widely differed.

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE PASSES CITRUS BILLS.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 21.—(AP)—Florida's legislature completed action today on four bills designed to improve conditions in the state's many million dollar citrus industry.

The house, overcoming opposition from a few members, passed four senate-approved bills to extend the life and broaden the powers of the Florida citrus commission, regulate fruit coloring, raise maturity standards and increase bonds required of dealers.

The senate, after several days' debate on the merits of taxation methods, voted 25 to 19 to submit to the voters next year a proposed constitutional amendment to limit ad valorem taxes for all purposes to 15 mills. It did not reach a vote on other proposed amendments to abolish all property taxes and to eliminate real estate taxes for state purposes only.

HITLER IS TERMED 'MEDIOCRE FELLOW'

Former Member of Reichstag, However, Says Der Fuehrer Is Sincere.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 21.—(AP)—Gerhart H. Seger, former member of the German Reichstag, said in an interview tonight that Adolf Hitler is "a very mediocre fellow, but absolutely sincere," and that he is expecting all of his political power in preparing for war.

Seger, an aviator in the German army during the World War, was here to talk to the Chattanooga Rotary Club tomorrow. He said Hitler wanted war for two reasons—to create a greater Germany and to make the country self-sustaining.

The visitor said he spent three months in prison and six months in a concentration camp.

HOUSTON SUGGESTS MEXICAN MONUMENT

HOUSTON, Texas, April 21.—(AP)—Colonel Andrew Jackson Houston, only living child of General Sam Houston, suggested today the Mexican government be invited to erect a monument at the battlefield where his father's army routed General Santa Anna's Mexican forces 101 years ago.

Speaking at dedication ceremonies of a memorial shaft at the battle grounds, Colonel Houston said:

"I feel that the Mexican government should be invited to erect a monument to the Mexican soldiers who fought and died in the battle. . . . Perhaps they would send back the battle flag of the Alamo."

BUCKET SHOP TRIAL FEATURES ATTACK ON STAR WITNESS

Defense Picks in Vain at Testimony of Robert Barr.

Defense counsel in the Kopoladquinn "bucket shop" trial yesterday picked desperately at the testimony of Robert Barr, erstwhile associate of the defendants, in an effort to crack the evidence given by the witness for the government in United States district court.

Barr admitted "stealing" about 10,000 in cash from the company which he was president, Robert Barr & Co., to the discomfort of his associates, whom he named as being Joseph Mendel-son, Leonard I. Sutterman and Joseph Sherman. The theft, he maintained, was "justified."

He told of trans-Atlantic trips financed by the government and expense money paid him as a witness in this country, both under direct examination and cross-examination, resulting in a tangle which had to be straightened out by Judge E. Marvin Underwood.
Barr had been living in Monte Carlo, in Europe, he said, and was brought back at government expense when the case first broke, "had his return fare paid and was again brought back to stuffy in the present trial. While in this country he is paid $4.50 a day for expenses as a witness, was brought out.

Admits "Lying."
Barr also admitted "lying" to several city and state agencies investigating Barr & Co. before his withdrawal as president with a $15,000 "bonus."

But the main section of his testimony dealing with the operations of the company remained unshaken. Several times during the course of the day defense attorneys backed under Barr's sistence on giving a full explanation of questions.

Defense attorneys hammered him after the other, on the fact that "short" sales are a legitimate market procedure, until finally arr announced with emphasis there is a difference between going short on customers and going short on the market in dividual or firm operations.

Difference Stressed.
The defense also dwelt at length on their contention that the rise and fall of a stock price governed solely by the demand of the public on the market. Barr admitted the contention to the extent that it applied to stocks in active trading, alleging this was the case in the stocks dealt in by Barr & Co. and its various shoots.

He admitted appearing before the Investors' Protective Bureau in Chicago, and clearing the company of any stigma with that organization. He told also of appearing before the Minnesota Securities Commission and securing instantment of the license of the company to operate in that state by his smooth explanations of the operations of the company. He did not contend there exactly that the defense attorneys are intending in this trial, that the rise and fall in stocks dealt in by his company were the result of speculations in public demand.
The license was reinstated because the commission "didn't know y better," he said.

Barr said when he left the company in 1933 he took with him between $60,000 and $80,000 in stocks needed by the company for liquidity and between $30,000 and $20,000 in cash. He returned the stocks, he said, in return for a full release, retaining the cash. He went to the European resort city because the "atmosphere there is inductive to bringing out fine ideas for writing." The volatile real estate operator, and dummy stock house president ("spelled with a capital D," he said) admitted aspirations in the field of literature and said he went to the smiling center of the world to gain inspiration.

Expenses Paid.
His first trip across the ocean was made to reveal operations of the company to investigators of the Securities and Exchange Commission and to appear before the court and jury. Under the law, the testimony was required, government officials said. The cost of his return journey was then paid. His turn trip here was paid by the government for him to appear as witness at the present trial.
Barr was still under cross-examination when the trial was suspended yesterday and it was esti-

Noted 'Deserted Bride'
Will Ask for Divorce.
LOS ANGELES, April 21.—
Mrs. Nan Pierson Brooks Macy
Brill, of New York society, asked for an annulment on her own behalf today in answering the annulment suit filed by William Hunsaker Brill, Los Angeles sportsman.

She charged that he secretly intended not to "perform the obligations of the contract of marriage" and refused to live with her as man and wife.
Denial was made by the vice-married beauty of Brill's allegation that he was under the influence of liquor when they were wed at Yuma, Ariz., March 9. He filed suit four days later.

coloratura soprano, the University of Georgia Glee Club will bring twenty-seventh annual tour to a close with a program at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The glee club is under the direction of Hodgson, professor of music at the university, and this year numbers 47 voices. Traveling with the glee club is the Georgia Buldog orchestra, which, with the club members, will present series of light skits based on college incidents.

A group of songs by the glee club and its featured soloists, violin numbers by Robert Harrison, University freshman, and chorus by the entire club will be presented on the varied program, it was announced.

The Atlanta appearance of the Georgia club is being sponsored by the local alumni of the University of Georgia.

Leaders in Organized Labor Circles of Georgia Gather in Atlanta for Momentous Convention of State Federation

Representing an organization that has shared the center of the stage in William Green's effort to bar CIO organizations from the Georgia Federation of Labor, these officers and board members of the Lady Garment Workers, Local 122, attended opening sessions yesterday of the Georgia Federation of Labor. Left to right: Mrs. Erabell Day, Mrs. Clara Souter, Miss Mae Hayes, John S. Martin, H. Ross Jones, Mrs. Bertha Smith and Mrs. Jolee Walden.

J. A. Harper (left) president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, who opened the annual state labor convention, hands over the gavel to A. Steve Nance, head of the Georgia Federation of Labor, who will preside through the remainder of the session. The turning over of the gavel followed a conference between the two.

Three pioneers in the labor movement in Georgia, caught yesterday morning as they attended opening sessions of the annual Georgia labor convention. All of them attended the first organization meeting of the Georgia Federation of Labor. Left to right, J. W. Bridwell, Henry F. Garrett, first president of GFL and W. J. Williams. The three were on a committee from the local trade federation that organized the state body.

DR. BRUCE PAYNE, 63, PEABODY HEAD, DIES

Nashville College President Since 1911 Taken Ill Suddenly.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 21. (P)—Dr. Bruce R. Payne, president of George Peabody College for Teachers, died early tonight of a heart attack at his home. He was 63 years old.

Since becoming head of the institution in 1911, he had built it into one of the leading teacher-training schools of the country.

Dr. Payne had been to his office today, but left early in the afternoon, complaining that he did not feel well. His condition, however, was not considered serious by his physician who visited him at his home.

Mrs. Payne was with him when death came shortly after he had retired.

The educator was active in civic affairs and only recently had been appointed chairman of a drive for funds for Fisk University, nationally known negro institution of Nashville.

A park-to-park highway system is being advocated, to link all the national parks and monuments under federal control.

HIT-RUN CHARGES FOLLOW SURRENDER

J. W. Donaldson, of Hapeville, Held for Hitting Boy on Bicycle.

J. W. Donaldson, of 811 Virginia avenue, Hapeville, alleged hit-run driver, surrendered to police late last night after his automobile struck a 15-year-old boy and knocked him from his bicycle on Capitol avenue, in front of Piedmont hospital, earlier in the night.

The boy, Charles Davis, of 392 Capitol avenue, was treated at the hospital. Charges of reckless driving and hit-run were placed against the man listed as Donaldson.

According to police reports, Donaldson said he stopped after allegedly striking the boy. Witnesses, reports stated, said the car continued. The boy suffered severe cuts and bruises.

BRITISH NOBLEMAN MARRIES VIRGINIAN

LONDON, April 21. (P)—Earl Beatty, eldest son of the British naval hero, and Mrs. Dorothy Power Sands, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Power, of Virginia, were married today at the London register office.

Admiral Lord Beatty died on March 10, 1936, and Viscount Borodale succeeded to the title. His mother was Ethel Field Beatty, daughter of Marshall Field, of Chicago, who died July 17, 1932, leaving her son $1,000,000.

ATLANTANS DEFEATED IN BRIDGE TOURNEY

NEW YORK, April 21. (P)—The Atlanta team competing in the United States Bridge Association's team of four championships was eliminated tonight by a team from Minneapolis.

Composing the Atlanta team were Mrs. George Thompson, Hugh Smith Jr., Dr. Charles E. Hall Jr. and John Brumbaugh.

MORGAN FACETIOUS ON COURT COSTUME

NEW YORK, April 21. (P)—J. P. Morgan, sailing today on the Queen Mary to attend the coronation ceremonies in London, wasn't worried about costume, even if it meant knee breeches.

"You don't go to a gentleman's house for dinner wearing a nightgown," the financier said. "I will wear whatever is expected, whatever it is."

AFL AIDE ORDERS OUSTER OF NANCE

the convention yesterday, declaring their personal friendship for each other and asking the co-operation of delegates toward settlement of four issues that make of the meeting one of the most interesting in the annals of organized labor in Georgia.

Nance presided without challenge, yesterday from the close of a formal speaking program until adjournment for the day.

Numerous delegates have disclosed activities of officials and other representatives of international unions in using threats to revoke cards of delegates who were members of their unions as means of forcing many of Nance's supporters to vote against the Georgia president's retention. These activities yesterday were said on all sides to be continuing, with noticeably less severe method of approach, however.

Nance Hopes Fairer

Nance, previously believed virtually in an impregnable position with delegates, was reported in The Constitution yesterday as in imminent danger of losing his fight to hold the presidency against the powerful opposition of William Green. This danger grew yesterday with rumors that delegates were forsaking the Nance banner by the score.

An Atlanta delegate, close to Nance but who declared he was faced with the "painful necessity" of voting against him, said:

"The result of this convention will be no true test of Steve Nance's popularity among labor men and women of Georgia. He is the outstanding figure in organized labor in this state in the last quarter of a century."

Dillon was directed by Green to oust Nance as president, bar all delegates of unions affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization from participation in the convention, remove offices of the Georgia Federation from their location next to Nance's home and completely divorce all CIO unions from affiliation with the GFL.

Formal Addresses.

The convention, opened by J. A. Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, host organization, got under way with formal addresses of welcome by state, county, city and civic officials. Nearly an hour late in starting, no business was transacted.

After taking the gavel from Harper, Nance responded to welcoming speeches and addressed the convention briefly on his hope of peaceful consideration of the issues involved. He introduced Dillon "for a statement," as "my personal friend and a man known throughout the United States among workers as a great leader."

Dillon told of his friendship and admiration of "my friend, Steve Nance."

"I want to express to Mr. Nance and each delegate to the convention my appreciation of the deep warmth of your welcome," said Dillon.

Pleads for Patience.

"I want to make a statement on behalf of Mr. Nance and myself: 'I come to Atlanta on assignment by the president of the American Federation of Labor, to do only those things that will add dignity and prestige to the AFL movement. I plead for patience, for kindness, consideration and tolerance on the part of all, for the exercise of good judgment. I hope and plead for the co-operation of every man and woman here, so that when the sessions here are concluded, bonds of friendship will be made stronger. 'I have conferred with a number of officers of the GFL, including President Nance, and have been received cordially by each of them. These conferences will be continued in a sincere effort to bring about a solution of the difficulties and complex problems presented here. We hope by tomorrow morning to be able to report to this convention that we have found that solution. We shall try in every honest way to accomplish this. 'I have known my friend, Steve Nance, for many years and I think I would be derelict in my duty if I failed to express my deep appreciation of his many kindnesses and courtesies. 'Prolonged applause greeted Nance's introduction by Harper and was repeated at the close of his brief speech. Delegates generously applauded also the friendly gestures of Dillon.

Addresses, besides those of Nance and Dillon, were made by Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, speak-

BOY OF 12 KILLED IN 'BROTHERS' FIGHT

One Wounded Other Held in Jail After Stray Shot Hits Lad.

WHITEWELL, Tenn., April 21. (P)—Sheriff Brown said 12-year-old Charles M. Rankin was killed by a stray bullet during a gun battle on the main street of Whitwell today.

Brown identified those participating in the shooting as J. D. Rankin, 21, a full brother, and Cecil Rankin, 29, a half brother of the dead boy.

He said J. D. Rankin was wounded in the thigh and taken to Chattanooga for treatment. Cecil Rankin, the sheriff said, was held in jail here.

"The younger boy got in the line of fire just as the two Rankin boys started shooting," the sheriff said.

He said there had "long been trouble" between J. D. and Cecil Rankin.

in the Governor's absence; Mayor Hartsfield, Frank R. Fling, secretary to the Fulton county board of commissioners; W. Eugene Harington, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. The Rev. Robert W. Burns, pastor of Peachtree Christian church, delivered the invocation.

The Georgia federation's executive board was called for a special session immediately after adjournment of the morning meeting, but officers declined to say what business was transacted. It was thought, however, that the matters that brought Dillon to Atlanta were discussed.

A portrait of Jerome Jones, known in labor circles as the "Samuel Gompers of the South" and long an ardent friend of public education, was unveiled at Jerome Jones school in exercises beginning at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The portrait was a gift to the school of the Georgia federation and the Atlanta Federation of Trades. William Van Houten presided.

Addresses in tribute to the life and work of Jones were delivered by Nance, E. S. Cook, F. T. Ray, Miss Ira Jarrell, Mrs. J. V. Wilson, Joe Starr and Dr. W. A. Sutton. J. A. Harper, president of the Atlanta central labor body, made the speech of presentation and Miss Margaret Kendrick, principal of the school, the speech of acceptance.

Jones, his voice quivering with emotion and tears streaming down his cheeks, told of his appreciation of honors given him and related some of his experiences in connection with organizing labor in Georgia and in forwarding the cause of education.

He had been hailed by Dr. Sutton as the man "who has made the greatest contribution to the progress of Atlanta in my lifetime."

Guests at Barbecue. Delegates were guests of the Atlanta Tourist Bureau at a barbecue during the afternoon at the Venetian Club.

The convention's second day opens at 10 o'clock this morning at headquarters in the Piedmont hotel, with Nance in the chair. Possibility that settlement of Nance's status and other issues set up by Green may come today was found in Dillon's statement to the convention yesterday.

Reports of officers and committees were scheduled along with other routine matters.

A banquet and dance will be given at the hotel tonight, the banquet commencing at 7:30 o'clock and the dance following at 10 o'clock.

HUNT IS INDICTED ON GIRL'S CHARGES

Bail Set at $25,000 for Follower of Father Divine.

LOS ANGELES, April 21. (P)—The "Jesus the Christ" of Father Divine's west coast "heaven" was indicted today on Mann act charges growing out of a 17-year-old schoolgirl's story of her betrayal.

John W. Hunt, 33, wealthy white follower of the Harlem negro cult leader, was accused by Delight Jewett of bringing her here from her Denver home and telling her she would become "Virgin Mary, mother-to-be of a new Messiah."

Hunt, former advertising man and member of a prominent Cleveland, Ohio, family, is at liberty on $10,000 bond. He was ordered taken into custody again and his bond fixed at $25,000.

The "portly Hunt has called himself variously "St. John the Revelator" and "Jesus the Christ." He surrendered here recently and put up the $10,000 bond in currency while federal agents were seeking him throughout the nation.

FRANCE IS FACED BY STRIKE THREATS

Barbers, Hairdressers and Other Workers Demand Increased Wages.

PARIS, April 21. (P)—Threats of widespread strikes combined with unrest among building trades workers gave the government of Premier Blum new worries tonight almost on the eve of the opening of the Paris International Exposition.

Barbers and hairdressers, cafe, hotel and restaurant employees threatened to walk out unless demands for increased wages are granted before the exposition starts on May 17.

Building trades workers' unions have threatened a general strike unless Blum makes several billions of francs available for a public works program to take care of unemployed.

STATE BRIEFS

MEMORIAL DAY SPEAKER.

DALTON, Ga., April 21.—Dr. S. Wilkes Denny, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be the principal speaker at annual Memorial Day exercises here.

SUNDAY BAN VOTED.

DALTON, Ga., April 21.—Dalton city council has passed an ordinance forbidding filling stations selling gasoline, oil or other petroleum products on Sundays between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., effective immediately. ## Extension of 10 Days For Beer Tax Forced

A 10-day extension in time required for collection of state beer taxes through "tax paid" was announced yesterday by Grady Head, of the revenue commission.

The crown, required by May 1 under the new beer tax law, will not be ready for general distribution to all brewers and bottlers as soon as expected, Head said, and the time limit will be moved up to May 19.

Head said the general system of collection will be through the crown manufacturer, who will collect the tax for the state at the time he delivers the caps to the brewers.

lic mind as it is to sell merchandise," he said.

At an earlier session, Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Democrat, Missouri, cautioned the publishers that freedom of the press must be safeguarded as one of the basic rights guaranteed in the first amendment to the constitution and denounced President Roosevelt's plan for reorganization of the supreme court.

"Nothing can be more dangerous to the liberties of any people than to have the press controlled by government, forced to be subservient to officials, appointed perhaps by dictators, as to what facts they may bring to the knowledge of the people," Senator Clark said.

Colonel Frank Knox, of the Chicago Daily News, predicted the price of daily newspapers would be materially higher if the increase in costs continues. Colonel Knox said newspapers are selling "far below their real worth."

Others who contributed to this discussion included H. V. Jenkins, of the Savannah (Ga.) News.

community in the county to work assiduously for whatever program is decided on "in order that our county, which already is the best in Georgia, may reap the maximum benefits from the Awards."

Speaks for Board.

Ed Turner, clerk of the Mitchell county commission, was present and represented commissioners who, he said, are anxious to lend their support to any program which may be devised.

He pointed out that since the advent of the depression years, the commission has cut tax assessments for the county from $8,000,000 a year to $4,000,000 and the tax rate from 18 mills to 4 mills. He added that the income of the county has been reduced already by 60 per cent and this saving has been placed in the pockets of taxpayers.

S. P. Richards, educator and a member of the Lions Club committee, was chosen chairman of the meeting. The Camilla Lions initiated the county movement for an aggressive drive to win the $3,500 first award.

Sponsored by Lions.

The meeting last night was sponsored by the Lions Club, but representatives were present from practically every one of the larger communities of the county.

Other members of the Lions Club committee include Robert L. Culpepper, attorney, chairman, and

Leaders of Mitchell County Map Program To Seek Constitution Award

Mitchell county civic leaders are shown above as they gathered at the invitation of the Camilla Lions Club to plan Mitchell's bid for the $3,500 first award in The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Government Awards. Shown, left to right (front row) are Mrs. W. M. Faircloth, president of the Mitchell County Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs; Miss Ella Foy, home demonstration agent; Mrs. T. A. Rigby, president, Sale City P-T. A.; Mrs. M. B. Mock, president, Camilla P-T. A.; Mrs. Isaac Marchant, of Sale City, president, Mignon Garden Club; S. P. Richards, selected as chairman of Ed B. Hillard, Mitchell county school superintendent.

Richards praised The Constitution for offering the awards, and announced "the determination of Mitchell county to set the pace for progressiveness and improvement in this section of the state," adding "we are out to win."

"The Atlanta Constitution, that great Georgia paper, has played an important part in the affairs of Georgia for many years," he asserted. "Thirty-five hundred dollars is a pile of money. We are not thinking so much of the $3,500, but of the benefits we will get if we enter co-operatively into this county-wide drive to achieve for the benefit of the county and its citizens."

All To Gain.

"It looks to me like we have everything to gain and nothing to lose. I have been pledged the co-operation of every citizen to whom I have mentioned the awards plan. County commissioners are ready and anxious to join us in prosecuting whatever program we develop to successful conclusion."

"I am completely sold on the matter of entering this campaign as we have never done for anything else before."

Mrs. Eugene Hackett, president of the Camilla Woman's Club, pledged the "unstinted co-operation of the women, announcing "We are ready to go when you give us the signal and we will help you in every way possible because we believe it is one of the finest things we have ever had an opportunity to be affiliated with."

"Strive for County."

Dr. C. O. Rainey, president of the Public Health Officers of Georgia, called on those present to "strive for the county, rather than for an award."

"If we win an award that will be fine, but we will benefit from a co-operative program in which every section of the county is interested intensely whether we win an award or not," he added.

"Nothing is more important than the concrete co-operation of the people of the county all pulling together for a common end."

Miss Ella Foy, home demonstration agent, told those present they could "count 100 per cent on her organization," and added a plea for a motorized unit to take library facilities to every section of Mitchell county.

Dr. Rainey added that more than $1,200,000 will be available in Georgia for the coming year for public health work. He said two years ago only 32 counties of the state had organized health units, but added that after July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year for the state, every county in Georgia will either be a health unit or will be a part of a district unit.

P.-T. A. To Aid.

Mrs. M. B. Mock, president of the Camilla Parent-Teacher council, also pledged her organization and stressed the necessity in obtaining and making available wholesome foods for children.

Wiley Williams, mayor of Cotton, urged steel school houses as a safety measure and a convenience for school children. He said Cotton plans to do its full share in the county drive for the $3,500 first award.

Mayor J. R. Pinson, of Baconton, expressed the sentiments of that thriving community with the terse statement:

"Just tell us what to do, and we'll do it."

Miss Rose Greer, president of the Baconton Woman's Club, added a pledge of co-operation from her organization.

Mrs. W. M. Faircloth, of Hopeful, president of the County Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs, also said her organization will assist.

Sale City's aid was pledged by Mrs. T. A. Rigby, president of the P.-T. A.; Mrs. Isaac Marchant, president of the Mignon Garden Club, and Mrs. Paul Branch, former president of the P.-T. A.

Under the plan evolved at the meeting, each representative will sound out his organization and will list projects to be submitted for final adoption at a meeting to be called by Chairman Richards.

In addition to Chairman Butler, L. D. Hand, of Pelham; E. B. Beasley, of Baconton; J. C. Lennard, of Pelham, and C. F. Williford, of Camilla, are members of the Mitchell county commission.

Mitchell is in the second congressional district and the eighth state senatorial district. It was formed on December 21, 1857, from what was then Baker county, and was named for General David B. Mitchell, who served as Governor of Georgia.

The county is essentially an agricultural one, and some of the finest farm lands of the state are incorporated within its boundaries.

that Schuschnigg apparently favors in the long run.

Some observers believed, however, that Italo-German co-operation has become so close Italy is ready to relax her grip on Austrian affairs, once aimed to prevent German penetration to Italy's northern border.

Such a withdrawal might pave the way for Anschluss (union) between Austria and Germany.

Those favoring the step asserted Italy could defend historic Brenner Pass, her gateway to the north, just as well against Germany as against Austria, and that Italo-German commercial relations would be spurred by having Germany as a next-door neighbor.

It was at Brenner Pass that Mussolini massed 75,000 soldiers in 1934 when Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was slain in a Nazi putsch in Vienna.

You'll Find a World of Interest in WANT ADS

A GREAT many people read the Want Ads in The Constitution as religiously as they do the columns of news. Besides furnishing an excellent index of local conditions, they have found that these little ads are downright Human, oftentimes revealing drama, or perhaps pathos.

Here are found real human interest stories—of, by and for the people of this city, expressed in their own words. Here are happy newlyweds seeking a cozy apartment... or a mother seeking to add to the family income by renting a spare room. Here is the man who has been advanced by his company to a better job in another city, and wants to sell his house and furniture... or an employer who has an excellent opportunity to offer to the right young man or woman. Here is the person seeking news of missing relatives or the heart-broken lad who wants to find his lost dog, or the elderly couple who want to sell their little business and retire, or the skilled workman who is seeking employment at his trade. Hope, faith, joy, sorrow are wrapped up in the want ads with intense interest from day to day.

YOU can never know what want ads will do for you until you read them and use them! A little investment in time devoted to reading them may save you many dollars on the car you have been wanting, or help you find the home of your dreams at a price within reach. Or, a few lines properly written and given enough insertions may sell that piece of real estate you considered "frozen." Or rent an empty apartment, or turn surplus furniture into needed cash. Every day the want ads in The Constitution are renting houses, garages, rooms, apartments. They are finding jobs and workers. They are securing business for painters, paper-hangers, music teachers, training schools. They are selling radios, furniture, refrigerators, pets, wearing apparel.

Frequently, all of us are prone to overlook the little things. But just remember this... these small ads run at trifling cost, make a little money go a long, long way. Those who know do not overlook the want ads because of their size. They profit from reading them, and from using them. Now during "NATIONAL WANT AD WEEK" is a good time for YOU to get the habit.

REPUBLICAN PARTY PICTURED BY MILLS AS DISORGANIZED

Former Treasury Secretary Says Democrats Have Ceased To Exist.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(P)—New L. Mills, former secretary of the treasury, described the Republican party tonight as "17,000,000 quite thoroughly disorganized individuals who are the heirs of American tradition—there being other claimants."

"Today there exists a strongly organized, well-led militant New Deal party—and, I might add, it is a well fed New Deal party as well," he said. "It proclaims a political philosophy new to America."

"For want of a better name we call it the New Deal party. While it has taken over the name and organization of the historic Democratic party, it has nothing in common with it. In fact—and as every Democrat knows—it repudiates every major article of Democratic faith."

"That is why I say the Democratic party, as it has been known, has ceased to exist."

"That is almost as true of the public party."

"Today two political forces are fighting for supremacy in the world."

"One is all powerful collectivism. The other is individualism. I believe the hope of mankind is in the hands of the free individuals determined to do what is worth preserving."

"The American people of today have no intention of bestowing on the state that divine right absolutism their forefathers took away from kings years ago."

PHONE RATES TO RISE WITH PRICES—GIFFORD

NEW YORK, April 21.—(P)—Telephone rates may increase if prices continue to rise, Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Company, said today.

"If prices of practically everything, including wages and taxes, continue to rise, telephone rates will not continue contrary to the general trend," he said.

MORE, BETTER BABIES ARE URGED BY HITLER

BERLIN, April 21.—(UP)—Adolf Hitler, himself a bachelor but an ardent advocate of more babies, expected early results tonight from his new school for marriage bureau managers who are expected to bring about a better understanding between Cupid and the stork.

The reich's school for match-makers, opened recently, is sort of a lonely hearts club and a bigger and better babies crusade. The managers-to-be of marriage bureaus scattered throughout the reich will tell lonely Germans how to find a mate. Then they'll tell them how to have fine, healthy babies—and lots of them.

GOOD PRICES PAID FOR 4-H LIVESTOCK

ed, county agents in charge of the club boys said they thought the prices paid were sufficiently high to give each boy and girl who raised a calf a good profit for his efforts. The calves were bought late last summer by the clubs and the members raised them to sell and exhibit at the livestock shows this spring. The program is being sponsored by individuals interested in promoting cattle raising in Georgia.

The highest price paid for cattle yesterday was 50 cents for the grand champion, and the lowest was 6.55 cents for some off-bred. The market price is around 8 cents.

After the show, R. E. Davis, who has helped conduct shows this spring in many south Georgia towns and has attended shows in neighboring states, declared that the Atlanta show surpassed all the others.

DR. J. C. ELROD, 59, OF FORSYTH, PASSES

Former President of Medical Society Dies in Macon Hospital.

FORSYTH, Ga., April 21.—Dr. J. C. Elrod, 59, one of the most widely known physicians in this section of the state, died this afternoon in a Macon hospital after ten days' illness.

Dr. Elrod was a past president of the Medical Society of Georgia, and was a major in the medical corps of the Georgia national guard. He had practiced medicine in Forsyth 36 years.

Surviving him are his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Carlton Mobley, of Atlanta, and Miss Mildred Elrod, of Forsyth; his mother, Mrs. G. B. Elrod, of Adairsville, and one brother, G. D. Elrod, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock (eastern standard time) Friday morning at the Forsyth Baptist church. Dr. Aquilla Chamblee, president of Bessie Tift College, will officiate, assisted by Dr. Ben Ingram and Dr. P. F. Davis, both of the Bessie Tift faculty.

Former Convict Elected Mayor Of Carolina City

WILMINGTON, N. C., April 21.—(UP)—Thomas E. Cooper, 49-year-old former banker who once served a federal penitentiary sentence, today prepared to become mayor of this city.

Wilmington Democrats nominated Cooper for mayor by a 1,100-vote margin over W. H. Blair, head of the city's government for the last 12 years, in a party primary yesterday. The nomination is tantamount to election.

Cooper, as youthful president of Wilmington's National Commercial Bank and Liberty Savings Bank, was convicted of banking law violations and sentenced to prison in connection with failure of the two institutions in 1922.

President Coolidge and Governor McLean signed pardons which freed him after more than two years of imprisonment.

Tax-Free Clay County Prosperous; Five-Mill Ad Valorem Predicted

Favorable Cash Balance Remains After Year Without Levy.

FORT GAINES, Ga., April 21.—(P)—Citizens of Clay county are winding up a year's vacation from paying taxes with "healthy" finances, a favorable cash balance, some new farm equipment and the prospect of the lowest tax rate in the state during the coming year.

The year's holiday from county taxes, voted by the county commissioners, was of "direct benefit" to practically every citizen of the county, F. A. Graham, commission chairman, reported today.

"The county," he said, "does not owe any money, either for current or bonded debt, and has a little cash balance in the treasury."

He estimated the tax holiday saved Clay county residents about $11,000.

In addition to relieving citizens of local taxes, the county paid the state assessment out of county funds. Only levies collected were a $1 poll tax from men under 60 and school taxes in the school districts.

With proceeds from the sale of highway certificates, the county bought a $5,000 tractor and a $4,500 terracing machine which were rented to local farmers at sub-standard rates.

Although Graham said "it will be necessary to levy taxes this year in the usual manner," the outlook for taxpayers is no cheerless by ordinary standards, for he predicted that the ad valorem rate will be five mills.

"The finances of this county," Graham said, "are in a healthy condition. This is one of the best farming sections in the state, and the chief money crops are about equally divided between cotton and peanuts. There is also increased interest in cattle and hog raising, and hog raising is especially profitable due to the fact that hogs fatten in the fall on the crops left in the field after the crop has been gathered and marketed."

LAWYER DESCRIBES AIMEE'S LOVE ROW

Ma Kennedy Quoted Warning Evangelist Against Married Men.

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—(UP)—A husky, red-haired lawyer, who once served Aimee Semple McPherson as legal counsel, told a startled courtroom today that Sister Aimee still tingled to romance despite middle age and an unsuccessful first marriage.

The witness, Jacob Moidel, testified that she fell in love with Giles Knight, her business manager, and supposedly manifested such interest in others that her mother warned her "not to get mixed up with any more married men."

"I spent thousands and thousands of dollars to buy up your love letters," Moidel quoted "Ma" Kennedy as telling her daughter. The attorney was testifying for the evangelist's estranged daughter, in her $150,000 slander suit against Sister Aimee's present counsel, baldish Willard Andrews.

He told of a stormy meeting in the Angelus Temple parsonage last Labor Day when he accused the evangelist of being in love. Present were Miss Semple, Harriet Jordan, Knight's predecessor as business manager, Mrs. McPherson and himself.

Sister Aimee, according to the witness, was red with rage as she accused him and Rhea Crawford Spilvold, then associate pastor, of circulating a letter she once wrote dived Dave Hutton, her former husband. Moidel continued:

"I said, 'You mean that filthy letter?' She screamed, 'You and Roberta leave this house and never come back until you do as Mr. Knight says.'"

1,500 POLISH MINERS GO ON HUNGER STRIKE

KATOWICE, Poland, April 21.—(P)—Black flags, emblems of hunger strikes, waved tonight over the Mosciak shaft and the Siemianowice mines, where 1,500 miners remained underground while 2,000 strikers returned to their homes.

The Mosciak miners, who yesterday ended a three-day sit-down strike when some of their demands were met, reoccupied the shaft for a hunger strike.

FBI AGENTS NAB YOUTH ON EXTORTION CHARGES

WATSONVILLE, Cal., April 21.—(P)—A written threat to kill a physician's wife, daughter and two sons and to dynamite his home unless he paid $2,500 caused the detention today of a youth on extortion charges by federal agents.

Sheriff J. R. Devitt said the youth was Spencer W. Kirkland, 19, son of a prominent apple exporter. His father, J. R. Kirkland, lives only a block from the home of the physician, Dr. Henry G. Watters, owner of the Watsonville hospital.

Trial in Killing of Carnival Worker Set for Monday in Reidsville.

REIDSVILLE, Ga., April 21.—(P)—J. E. Kirkland, 64-year-old Glennville farmer and businessman, was indicted by a Tattnall county grand jury today for the fatal shooting last November of Mallie Crosby, 17-year-old St. Petersburg, Fla., carnival worker.

The Solicitor General J. P. Dukes said a warrant would be issued for the arrest of Kirkland, who has been at liberty under $20,000 bond on a voluntary manslaughter charge since the shooting. Trial has been set for Monday.

DAM PLAN APPROVAL PREDICTED BY GEORGE

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Senator Walter F. George, Georgia Democrat, predicted today the Power Commission would send a favorable report to President Roosevelt on the proposed Clarks Hill dam in South Carolina before May 1.

George said Frank R. McNinch, commission chairman, told him the report would be completed in a few days. He added, however, McNinch gave no indication as to the agency's findings.

The project, estimated to cost approximately $22,000,000, is designed for hydroelectric, navigation and flood control development. The dam would be on the Savannah river north of Augusta, Georgia.

SOUTH GEORGIA MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

HATLEY, Ga., April 21.—(P)—Homer Johnson, 35, was found shot to death this morning at his home between Deborah and Rebecca, south of here. Death was caused by a shotgun wound over his heart, a physician reported. The shotgun lay near by.

Surviving Johnson are his widow and two children.

MACON POLICE QUIZ BEGUN BY COUNCIL

Chief and Two Other Officers Face Charges of Neglect of Duty.

MACON, Ga., April 21.—(P)—Chief Ben T. Watkins and two other officers were called by the police committee of the Macon city council late today to answer charges growing out of an investigation of the police department by Mayor Herbert Smart.

Watkins, former president of the Georgia Peace Officers' Association and state American Legion commander, is charged with "willful disobedience of orders," neglect of duty and conduct "subversive of good order and the discipline of the force."

The other two, Assistant Chief T. E. Garrett and Captain W. S. Evans, are charged with neglect of duty. Garrett also faces a charge of "conduct unbecoming an officer."

Civil service rules of the Macon police department provide an officer must be tried before the police committee before he can be demoted or dismissed.

The escape of a prisoner from the police barracks last January 20 brought about the investigation, which was requested by Garrett.

All three officers remained on duty today.

Prosecution Planned In Child's Marriage

MADISONVILLE, Tenn., April 21.—(P)—District Attorney General Beecher Witt said today that warrants have been drawn in connection with the recent child marriage at Epperson, Tenn., of Geneva Hamby and 32-year-old Homer Peels and that "prosecution and annulment action will follow immediately."

He declined to say who was named in the warrants.

"Steps will be taken to annul the marriage as soon as I can get the child's mother here," he declared. "I have sent to Decatur, Tenn., for her."

TEACHERS' OATH VOTED.

LANSING, Mich., April 21.—(P)—The Michigan senate voted, 23 to 4, today to repeal the 1935 law requiring teachers in public schools and state educational institutions to take an oath of allegiance. The measure goes to the house.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Ether Blodgett is a typical pretty girl in a typical North Dakota town—except for her movie ambitions. All her dreams and waking hour thoughts center on Hollywood and the silver screen. Her family, impatient with her ideas, nags the girl unmercifully, force her into seclusion. Only Grandma Blodgett, of hazy pioneer stock, sympathizes with Esther, and that sympathy carries her sympathy into action by offering Esther enough money to take her to the land of her dreams. Esther protests, but with Grandma's aid she runs away from home one morning, boards the train. She just setting her first sight of the amazing movie capital. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT II.

Esther stared at the bulls with a dazed expression. Often she had thought of herself walking calmly and regally to the ticket window and saying to the old station master, "One ticket to Hollywood, Mr. Craigie, please." But until this moment she had never really considered where the money was to come from.

"I—I can't take your money, Granny."

"And why not?" Granny was her old self now, bristling with indignation when she did not have her own way.

"But it's your savings."

"And what better way could I spend it than helping you to a new freedom. These others here would never understand that. You must get away and I am the only means of escape."

The two of them, flushed with the excitement of adventure, began laying their plans in the tiny bedroom. In a little while the farmhouse would be submerged in a death-like sleep and it would be easy enough to steal off without being heard. There was not much packing to do; Esther's few belongings lay comfortably in a single suitcase. Motioning caution to each other, the two of them began the slow ascent of the stairs, finally managed the porch door and then made for the barn to get the sleigh in readiness.

On the way to the station the two women—one who had helped create a new world, the other off to a land whose glitter beckoned—were wrapped in their own thoughts and neither spoke. When the dim lights of the station approached, Esther turned to her grandmother.

"What will they say when I am missed?" she asked fearfully. "They'll have plenty to say, don't doubt it." Grandmother Lettie seemed to be picturing their expressions of horror and to be getting a keen satisfaction from what she saw. "But don't worry, child. I'll know what to tell them. I've been waiting for a chance like this for over 30 years." A smile of anticipation spread over her face as she thought of the scene that would take place in the farmhouse next morning, and old Craigie, emerging from his seclusion, was startled by her expression as he lifted his lantern to identify his customers.

He was even more startled when the order was barked at him, but he contented himself by muttering "Hollywood" under his breath. You never could tell what Lettie might do next. When Craigie returned with the tickets, his practiced ear told him that the train would soon be in the station.

"Here she is, girls," he announced, and went down to the end of the platform to signal. The sound of the approaching train grew louder, and Esther was fluttering with excitement.

This was her supreme moment. No matter what heights she might eventually rise to, nothing would ever equal this hour of triumph when she stood in the small, deserted station next to the grand old lady who was offering her a ticket to glamorous new world of freedom. Granny's voice broke into her thoughts:

"Pick up your bag, Esther. Here comes your prairie schooner!" "All aboard" to his single new passenger. Esther stood on the steps saying good-by, her sobs almost choking the word in her throat. She said it over and over, dreading the moment when she would have to turn away from her grandmother and enter the car.

Granny was talking hurriedly, with forced cheerfulness. "I'll be waiting for you in those motion pictures. Don't tell Mattie, but my eyes ain't quite as good as they once were. But my ears are all right, so you remember to talk up good and loud."

As the train pulled out, Granny was still talking, but Esther, nodding like an automaton and waving vigorously, could no longer hear her. Esther's thoughts were a confusion.

She was on her way to Hollywood.

There were no eager crowds to herald the arrival of a brilliant new star in the Hollywood firmament. No reporter rushed at her to get a scoop on her thoughts and hopes and plans. The street car that let her off at Hollywood boulevard was an ordinary street car filled with ordinary human beings who were going about their business entirely unconcerned with Esther's ambitions. If she was to be the hope of the silver screen, no one seemed to know or care.

But there was plenty to engage her attention, and she stood on the corner eagerly surveying the Boulevard. Hurrying throngs passed by her. There were crowds of shoppers, and a gratifying number were in slacks, pajamas, backless dresses or shorts. There were men in banjo-backed coats, berets and polo shirts. A few cowboys, who might have stepped out of the latest horse opera, strolled by. This was the city Esther had dreamed of, and she drank in the crowds, staring with unabashed curiosity, like a child who has seen her first Christmas tree. This was what she had expected of Hollywood.

No one paid the slightest attention to anyone else. Lady Godiva might have ridden by on her mission and not an eyelash would have flickered in that crowd. But to Esther each small drama on the street was of the greatest moment. A small man in a derby paused near her, consulted his wrist watch and at his beck six midges hurried to him, chattering shrilly. Esther followed them with her eyes. They were quite out of sight.

Then she was aware of abnormal excitement along Vine street. A large, milling crowd had gathered in front of the Brown Derby. Through her omnivorous reading of fan magazines, Esther had come as well acquainted with the high spots of Hollywood as though she had lived there all her life. She knew of the Brown Derby, the rendezvous of the stars, so she hurried forward, still clutching her newspaper and no longer conscious that the suitcase had become lost in her hand.

A luxurious limousine was drawing up to the Brown Derby and the mob of autograph hunters had recognized it. Esther stood on the edge of the jostling crowd listening to them as they exchanged the gossip of their trades. No the crowd surged forward to the curb, carrying Esther with the Cries of "Yes, Norman!" "Hello, Norman!" could be heard on all sides. This was a prize for an autograph collector worth a fountain pen, and the crowd swooped down mercilessly on the car.

The limousine held the first of the Hollywood—Norman Maine. Since his advent on the screen, Maine had been the undisputed hero of millions of moviegoers, a man he had held that position longer than most. He was at his ease, mobs gone insane, for he had more than his share of worst. His producer, Oliver Niles, looked out of the window of the car, pondering whether to assume the role of a pearly of great pretense to the crowd.

"Your public's loose," he observed resignedly.

"Oh, that old thing," Norman Maine answered archly.

"And they've brought the kids."

Maine dismissed this added obstacle with a wave of the hand. "Oh, yes," he said. "I hired a whole works, to impress my producer with my terrific boxoffice appeal." He made an elaborate bow to Niles.

Oliver Niles had been Maine's producer for a long time. He had no illusion about the artistic worth of his chief star, but he had sharpened sense of the value of publicity and his ability to re-shape the shifts in public taste amount to genius.

Now Niles regarded Maine with a curious expression, which a star, occupied with the throng shouting and waving fans, was unable to read. Otherwise he might have seen his whole future written there.

"You can't hire that, Norman. And Heaven help us both when they stop giving it away."

The car was at the curb and the crowd was pressing about. Maine looked helplessly at his producer, who seemed to be getting enormous fun at the expense. Maine's discomfort.

"Go ahead," he said. "It's yours."

With a mock heroic gesture Maine opened the door of the car. "California, here I come!" he announced to the world at large.

Norman Maine was frantic, signing autograph books; a watching him, Esther received her first lesson in stardom. She was learning that the public will offer its adulation freely, but that on he is on the street it is worth star's life to reach the sanctum of a public restaurant. A private meal, much less a private life, not for the immortals of the screen.

Buffeted about by the throng, Esther was pressed against the fans shouting "Sign it here, Norman," or more intimately, "Sign 'To my friend, Mildred.'"

VISITS IN ALASKA.

II—Gold and Fish.

When the United States bought Alaska from Russia 70 years ago, many Americans said it was a foolish bargain. They called Alaska "Seward's ice-box," because Secretary of State Seward signed the treaty, and because the land purchased seemed to them nothing better than an ice-filled waste.

"Washing gold" in Alaska.

As a matter of fact, most parts of Alaska are cold. In some places the temperature falls to 65 or 70 degrees below zero during the long winters.

From that viewpoint, we might say there was reason to call it an "ice-box," but there are other facts which should not be forgotten. The southeastern section, the so-called "panhandle," has a fairly mild climate the year around. Even far to the north, around the city of Nome, the summer weather is warm enough for comfort. In winter, it is different, for Nome is "frozen seven months of the year"—but what else could we expect of a town almost at the edge of the arctic circle? The interesting thing is that hundreds of islands near Alaska and thousands of square miles of the mainland have a good climate.

The price of Alaska was $7,200,000 "in gold." Let us compare that to the gold which has been found in Alaska. In the past 70 years the streams and mines have yielded gold to the value of more than $450,000,000. This makes the purchase look like a good bargain.

The greatest "gold harvest" came after the gold rush which started about 40 years ago. Even in the present period, the yield of gold far more each year than the entire amount that was paid to Russia.

Copper and silver mines in Alaska also have proved of high value. Coal, lead, tin, tungsten and platinum are other minerals found fairly large amount.

All taken together, however, the minerals of Alaska are not proving of as great value as the fish. The yearly catch of salmon alone is worth almost twice as much as all the gold, silver and copper which are being mined there.

In addition, the waters around the territory provide millions of pounds of halibut and codfish.

One kind of salmon caught in Alaska is known as the "sock-eye." It is about three feet long on the average and weighs about 10 pounds. A far larger fish is the "king salmon," which is caught in the rivers of Alaska's panhandle. It has an average weight of more than 20 pounds.

PUBLIC IS WARNED TO PAY UP TAXES ON SOCIAL SECURITY

Revenue Commissioner Says
Delinquents Will Face Stiff Penalties.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—A threatened employers' strike against payment of social security taxes pending supreme court decision on their validity brought a sharp warning tonight from Internal Revenue Commissioner Helvering.

He ordered district tax collectors to "investigate actively" all failures to make returns promptly and said that stiff penalties will be imposed on delinquents if the supreme court holds the levies constitutional.

Helvering acted after some New England employers said they planned to ignore the federal old age pension and unemployment insurance taxes in view of the Boston circuit court of appeals decision holding them unconstitutional.

He said he anticipated that the supreme court will reverse the Boston decision "at an early date," and warned:

"In the event that the supreme court upholds these taxes, we will collect penalties regardless of whether failure to pay occurred before or after the date of the supreme court decision."

The penalties range from five per cent of the amount of the tax less than 30 days delinquency to 25 per cent for more than 30 days. Employers convicted of willful failure to file returns are subject to an additional maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

'Squeeze' Play Forces Payment Of Parking Fee

Rate capitol workers who found a 10-cent fee necessary for admission to their previously free parking lot yesterday expanded the title of Parks Director Charles Elliott to "director of parking."

Complaints piled on Elliott's desk, and there were appeals for suspension of the charge. Least until Governor Rivers returns from a three-day speaking tour and can hear the side of the workers.

The howl went higher when the city placed one-hour parking signs on all streets about the capitol.

"I'll admit it's good business for a parking lot, but I had nothing to do with the new restrictions on street parking," Elliott said.

The new sign on the parking lists rates of 10 cents a day, 25 cents a week, or $2 a month and proclaims that "money collected will be used in beautifying streets and other property."

Elliott said it was Governor Rivers' idea for raising funds with which to improve the sightliness of numerous pieces of city-owned property bordering the capitol square.

The space—it will hold about 100 cars—lies behind the military building on Mitchell street. Reluctant to abandon the idea at all, Elliott is even more reluctant until income from the property repays the cost of an office erected for the collector.

RAMSPECK IS NAMED TO CAMPAIGN GROUP

Atlanta Honored by Selection for Important Post by Colleagues.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Atlanta, today was given the honor by his colleagues in the congressional delegation of being as Georgia's member of the Democratic congressional campaign committee for the next two years.

Succeeding Representative E. E. Cox, who held the post during the last two years, Representative Ramspeck was selected for the post at a meeting of the delegation held today in the office of Representative Carl Vinson, of Hledgeville, dean of the Georgia House group.

It is the practice of the delegation to rotate the office, naming a different member with every congress. Previously the assignment was held by Representative Alcorn C. Carver, of Dalton.

The Atlanta congressman, now in his fifth consecutive term, chairman of the important civil service committee, and is regarded as one of the most popular members of the house.

As a member of the congressional campaign committee, which headed by Representative Patrick Henry Drewry, of Virginia, it will be Mr. Ramspeck's duty to direct efforts next year toward electing a Democratic majority in the state having a Democratic representative in congress is expected to be one member of the committee.

VINSON ASKS BUILDING OF AUXILIARY VESSELS

WASHINGTON, April 22.—(P)—Representative Vinson, of Mississippi, Ga., asked congress today to authorize construction of 500 tons of naval auxiliary vessels.

The bill is the same as one introduced in the senate by Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts.

The proposed vessels and tonnage are as follows: Seaplane tender, 8,300; destroyer tender, 9,000;

Photonews of Primate, Archbishop, Bishop

PRIMATE—The Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Lord High Almoner to the King and Archbishop of Canterbury, will perform the actual coronation for the first time.

ARCHBISHOP—Second in rank in the spiritual ceremonies in this holy-poly prelate. He receives $45,000 a year, a salary $30,000 less than that of his superior.

WESTMINSTER DEAN—The Very Rev. W. Foxley Norris will have little to do but invest George VI with his imperial mantle. The dean is a frequent visitor to the United States.

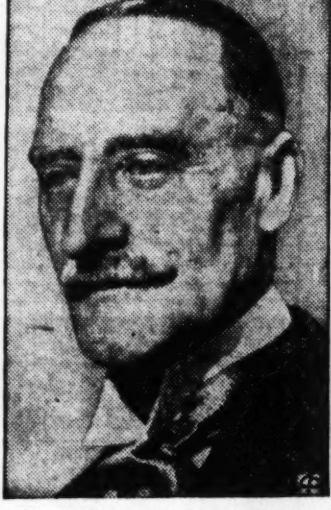

BISHOP OF LONDON—Ordinarily there would be a sermon by Dr. Winnington Ingram. This year there will be none. But the ceremony still calls for the bishop's presence.

DUKE OF GLOUCESTER—Only member of the royal family besides the King and Queen to take part in the coronation at Westminster Abbey May 12, he leads the peers' homage.

EARL MARSHAL—The Duke of Norfolk, 28, premier peer, orders all ceremonial, issues decrees for the Church of England coronation rites though a Roman Catholic.

LORD CHAMBERLAIN—The handsomely entitled Earl of Ancaster, traditionally entitled to claim the royal nightshirt and the King's bedroom furniture, will settle for $1,000 instead.

DUKE OF BEAUFORT—The Master of the Horse will be right at home on a charger directly behind the royal carriage. The duke is, by marriage, a nephew of Queen Mary.

GABLE IDENTIFIES CHECKS FOR ALIBI

Letters to Mae West From Woman Describes Reputed Affair in England.

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—(P)—Clark Gable rewarded faithful feminine court attendants with a second brief appearance on the stand today to close the government's mail fraud case against Mrs. Violet Norton who claimed him as the father of her illegitimate child.

The movie actor was recalled only to identify checks paid him in Oregon in 1923. It was in that year Mrs. Norton said she had an affair with him in England under the name of Frank Billings.

Gable hid behind locked doors in the federal building until time for his brief appearance at the end of a court session in which:

1. It was stated that Mrs. Norton's asserted aides mentioned creation of a $150,000 trust fund for her daughter, Gwendoline, 13, who she claims is the movie actor's child.

2. A letter from Mrs. Norton to actress Mae West was read, stating "she is Clark Gable's love child, all right," and describing details of Mrs. Norton's illicit love affair with the man she believed to be Gable.

Four Oregon residents were called to establish that Gable was working in Oregon during the years Mrs. Norton said she was his mistress in England.

RUDY VALLEE TRIAL HAS 'PACKED HOUSE'

Male Fans Predominate as Crooner Is Convicted of Assault.

BOSTON, April 21.—(P)—A "packed house"—male fans predominating—today heard Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader and crooner, convicted of assault and battery on a Boston newspaperman.

They heard Judge Gillen order the case placed "on file" and explain it would mean Vallee would have no record in the eyes of police.

Vallee drew ripples of laughter several times. He shouted once from the witness stand. That was when he denied he had called Benedict Fitzgerald, Boston News photographer, a name "reflecting on the Irish race," and explained he was of Irish extraction himself.

Fitzgerald had hailed Vallee into court, claiming that the crooner "poked" and "struck" him after he had "snapped" the orchestra leader, a companion, and Evelyn Cresham, New York show girl, as the trio recently left a Boston theater.

GUS HILL, MINSTREL, DIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 21.—(P)—Gus Hill, famous minstrel man and Broadway producer of other days, died last night at the age of 79.

One of Broadway's best-known personalities, Hill was the "discoverer" of such personalities as Fred Stone, Sophie Tucker, Ben Turpin, Bert Wheeler and Harry Richman.

F. D. R. COURT PLAN OPPOSED BY D. A. R.

Organization Says Dispute Should Be Settled by People.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—The Daughters of the American Revolution opposed the Roosevelt court bill today and urged that the dispute be settled by the decision of the people.

The organization acted while the senate judiciary committee approached the conclusion of its hearings on the measure by taking the testimony of four witnesses. All opposed giving the President the authority he has requested to increase the membership of the supreme court unless judges past 70 retire.

Edward T. Lee, dean of the John Marshall Law School, Chicago, said the bill was unprecedented, and endangered "all provisions for securing the rights of the people under the constitution."

Rabbi William F. Rosenblum, of New York City, said it was "patent that the proponents of the change are not so much concerned with the mentality of the justices as with their economic or political temperamentalities, their disposition to rubber stamp that which the executive and the legislative may regard as expedient or exigent."

Francis H. Kinnicutt, president of the Allied Patriotic Societies, Inc., presented a resolution adopted by his organization in opposition to the bill.

Louis J. Ward, of Detroit, closely associated with the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, denied assertions that the supreme court has "usurped" the power to nullify acts of congress.

MILLION STUDENTS WILL PROTEST WAR

Peace Demonstrations To Be Held Over Nation
Today.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—Throughout the nation tonight upwards of 1,000,000 students awaited word to begin the largest student peace demonstrations in American history.

Officials of the United Student Peace Committee said the order had gone out for students to leave their classrooms at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Last year more than 500,000 students participated in the anti-war demonstrations.

Although the form of the demonstrations will range from strikes in most leading American colleges to peace assemblies in scores of high schools, the event will be far more united and representative than ever before, John Wechsler, speaking for the committee, said tonight.

FIVE FAIL TO HALT SIMPSON DIVORCE

Royal Proctor Reveals Futile
Efforts To Show Law Violated.

LONDON, April 21.—(UP)—Five persons have tried, and failed, in the last few days to block Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson's final divorce decree and prevent her marriage to the Duke of Windsor, the King's proctor revealed tonight.

The unidentified would-be-interveners reportedly brought evidence purporting to prove that England's divorce laws were violated and that the American divorcee should not receive her divorce from Ernest Simpson on May 3.

Persons objecting are allowed to appear any time up to April 27, when the six-month decree nisi period ends.

AIR COMPETITION FOR SHIPS HINTED

Plane Flights Expected To Start in 2 Weeks; Dir-gibles Planned.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Maritime Commission officials predicted today that transoceanic aircraft eventually may compete with steamship transportation. Their comment was made coincidentally with these two developments:

Testimony before a house committee that two American companies are hastening arrangements for ocean-flying dirigibles.

Announcement by J. Monroe Johnson, assistant commerce secretary, that first experimental flights for a new trans-Atlantic plane service will begin "within six weeks to two months."

T. A. Knowles, of the American Zeppelin Transportation Corporation, disclosed that two rigid dirigibles, the size of the Hindenburg, are contemplated.

WALLACE SHELVES THREE FARM BILLS

Tenancy, Insurance and 'Normal Granary' Meet Snag in Economy Plea.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(P)—Three major farm proposals which administration leaders had offered as remedies for agricultural ills may be shelved temporarily, according to a surprise announcement by Secretary Wallace today.

Wallace said the present system of benefit payments to farmers which have averaged $500,000 annually can be continued with funds in the Agriculture Department appropriation now going through congress.

DELAY PLEA DENIED IN DENHARDT TRIAL

Ten Jurors Tentatively Chosen; Prosecutor Hints
Death Demand.

NEW CASTLE, Ky., April 21.—(P)—In the same courtroom where 14 years ago he made the opening speech of his successful campaign for the office of lieutenant governor of Kentucky, portly Brigadier General Henry H. Denhardt went on trial today on a charge of murdering his fiancée, lovely Verna Garr Taylor.

General Denhardt leaned forward as Judge Marshall overruled a motion for a continuance until the September term and ordered the trial started.

The commonwealth says Denhardt shot and killed the 40-year-old widow as the climax of an all-day outing last November 6. Commonwealth's Attorney Kin-solving probably gave a tip-off to the future demands of the state when he questioned prospective jurors as to their feelings on capital punishment.

TWO 'SCHOOL DAYS' PLANNED FOR FAIR AT LAKEWOOD PARK

City Schools To Have Separate Date From Institutions of Counties.

Plans for the educational feature of the Southeastern Fair and Atlanta Centennial on October 7-16 at Lakewood park were completed yesterday at a meeting at the city hall of city, county and state school heads with President Mike Benton.

It was voted to have two school days at the fair, one for the city and another for Fulton, DeKalb and surrounding counties. Definite dates for the fair holiday for each school system will be determined at city and county board of education meetings later.

In observing separate city and county school days the congestion of the single school day of the past will be relieved, it was believed. President Benton and other officials of the fair are much pleased with the new idea of two days, and they promised full co-operation with the school authorities in making those two days the biggest at the fair.

Assurance was given school officials Wednesday that the midways and exhibits will be in full operation on the opening of the fair, which will be several days in advance of school days.

Officials also have set aside the former agriculture building for use of the city and county schools and gave the schools full authority to go ahead with bigger plans than ever before for their educational exhibits.

Remodeling Ruined By Defective Wiring

This is a hard-luck story. Wayne Moore recently remodeled his home at Virginia avenue and Main street, College Park, spending $700 in the process. Late Tuesday night, defective wiring caused a slight explosion in a refrigerator, and the resultant fire damaged the house to the extent of $1,000. The family was absent at the time of the fire.

School officials were given assurance yesterday that sanitary conditions at the fair will be greatly improved. A contract already has been signed and work begun on renovating and increasing rest room facilities.

Those present at the meeting yesterday in addition to President Benton included F. B. Stewart, director of exhibits at the fair; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the Atlanta schools; W. M. Ralney, superintendent of DeKalb county schools; Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools; Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools; W. H. Edwards, city sanitary engineer; Mrs. J. Elmer Slider, president; and Mrs. Otis Rae, secretary of the Atlanta Council Parent-Teacher Associations, and Ivan Allen, a former president and a director of the Southeastern Fair Association.

SCHOLARSHIP CUP AWARDED TO WELLS

Gadsden Youth Wins High Honor at Atlanta Southern Dental College.

W. B. Wells, a senior at the Atlanta Southern Dental College, was declared winner of the 1936-37 Aiken scholarship cup.

Wells, who lives in Gadsden, Ala., will be graduated in June. He averaged 95.12 for his senior year.

The Aiken cup is presented annually by Dr. Ralph H. Aiken, Atlanta dentist, to the senior in the Xi Psi Phi fraternity with the highest average.

Cain Enjoys Abbreviated Visit In England, Sets Out for Ireland

Atlantan Finds It Takes Time To See London, But Decides To Accept Another Maritime Job and Return to Albion Later.

By ARTHUR CAIN.

Bringing the glad tidings from Aix to Ghent came Cain on his way to London.

Arthur Cain

With a huff and puff our packet pulled to a stop in Plymouth harbor. Peat fires smoked invitingly in the distance of a hazy, English afternoon, rolling landscapes rolled in the best George Inness manner and hundreds of David Copperfield plodded along the road to Dover. Cain bounded ashore with a quiet but expressive, but not too expressive, yelp of delight. Bonnie England was to be our host at last, after we had wished all our life for the opportunity.

A one-pound note, five bucks to you, rested comfortably in the Cain pocket. Past experience had taught us that a one-pound note could be quite sufficient funds for provender and the like if the nose remained in a reasonable state of sanitation. As far as the merrie whirl was concerned, Cain was content to do without it. The land of Shakespeare, Bacon and Milton was adequate stimulant unto itself.

Becoming aristocratic all at once we decided to leave the freight trains and the blinds to the common hitch-hikers and pay our way to London. We settled ourselves upon the soft plush cushions with a supercilious air and peered down from the palatial panorama. We were prepared to sniff disdainfully at the pedestrians.

Conductor Was a Guard.

I drew myself up haughtily when the conductor insinuated that my fine dungarees were hardly the thing for afternoon travel wear. "My man," spake Cain with awful dignity, "these trousers have graced the limbs of better men than thou. In fact, they do so at this very moment. Where," asked I petulantly, "is my whip?" The conductor looked at me askance and went away talking to himself. Cain stepped out in Paddington station with a quiet smile of superiority.

Here was all vast London stretched out for my approval. Old town of top hats and fog and mutton chop whiskers. Here was Piccadilly and Trafalgar Square, Buckingham Palace and the Limehouse district of Conan Doyle intrigue, and here the hallowed ground of some of the greatest men and soldiers of all history. Here now on Pall Mall were the men who ruled over England and the British Isles, India and the Dominions beyond the seas. The solid dignity of the Thames and the Embankment impressed Cain with the good taste of behaving himself while visiting the stronghold of old John Bull.

Not in Three Days.

We were also impressed with the increasingly obvious fact that London could not be seen in three days, like Paris, or even in three weeks. It seemed the more Cain walked and the more places we managed to slip into the more there was to see. We were faced with the fact that we must either get a job and take up housekeeping in London or else just hit the high spots and return to the city at another time. Dame Fortune, as usual, came to the rescue and made up our mind for us.

One day, as we were deliberating upon the feasibility of crashing our way into The Coffee House, oldest club in the world, we were informed that a job for an experienced man of the sea was available in Liverpool. There was, in fact, almost always an opening and a few extra bob awaited the man who was not averse to breaking his back down at the floating docks, where ships of all climes hove in for repairs. We cast a longing glance at the astute row of buildings which invited us to remain, looked again at our dwindling funds and set out for Liverpool.

This time we discarded our disguise as a gentleman and returned to the highway. This was the first time since leaving the States that we had actually "thumbed" rides to get along our way. But it was nothing new on the Liverpool road and we had no difficulty reaching destination on time. Trucks, runabouts and wagons all stopped for me and took me as far as they were going. And Cain gladly supplied all the conversation necessary to entertain the different drivers—it had been nearly a year since we had been in an English speaking country and it was a real pleasure just to sit back and talk.

On to Ireland.

On the way to Liverpool we broached the subject of a hitchhiking trip across Ireland. This was one country that we had no intention of missing regardless of the risks and difficulties. And the more we heard of the impossibility of the venture the more determined we became to make the trip. As it turned out, I had a more hair-raising experience getting into the city of Dublin than I did in any other place, whether civilized or not.

So tomorrow I'll explain what the Irish rebellion did to Cain, and why one of my ears is bigger than the other. And why we have no wish to return to the land of shamrock without an armored car and an escort of United States marines.

CHURCH TO CELEBRATE BY 'CRUSADE BANQUET'

A crusade banquet, celebrating the first crusades of Methodist missionaries 89 years ago, will be held at the Calvary Methodist church at 7 o'clock tomorrow night.

Dr. Arthur F. Corey, of Santa Anna, Cal., will be principal speaker, discussing "A Streamlined Church." Other speakers will be Dr. Orville L. Davis, Dr. Walt Holcomb, Bishop Arthur Moore and Dr. C. C. Jarrell, presiding elder of the Atlanta District. The entire church membership is invited.

ROSENBAUM INDICTED IN VIOLINIST SLAYING

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—The grand jury indicted Mischa Rosenbaum, 31, today on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the death of Miss Julia Nussbaum, night club violinist.

The girl, who had appeared in entertainments with Rosenbaum, was found unconscious from blows on the head early last Sunday in a rehearsal studio in uptown New York. She died without regaining consciousness.

Rosenbaum, taken in custody a few hours after the girl died, is known also as Mischa Ross and Mischa Rosen.

MILK SHED BALLOTS CAST BY DAIRYMEN

Results of Atlanta and Augusta Voting To Be Announced Tomorrow.

Dairymen and creamerymen of the Atlanta area voted yesterday in the first election in the state for adoption of the new milk control law permitting the fixing of minimum prices.

While the election polls closed at 7 p. m., the results will not be announced until certified by the Milk Control Board at a meeting tomorrow.

At the same time, the board will certify results of an election to be held today in the Augusta milk shed.

The milk control law takes effect only in those areas in which a majority of the producers and distributors of milk vote in favor of it.

Ten days following certification of the results of the Atlanta and Augusta elections—if the law adopted—the board will conduct public hearings to gain information upon which to establish minimum prices in the respective sheds.

The board also has other regulatory powers in the production and distribution of milk, promulgating rules for each shed after hearings.

FARMERS' DEBTS REDUCED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP)—The Resettlement Administration reported today debts of 53,632 farmers had been reduced $44,620,153 through operation of a voluntary debt adjustment service in the 19 months ended March 31.

Arrival of Visitors To Renew Friendship Begun in Peiping

By Sally Forth.

A FRIENDSHIP which had its beginning in Peiping, China, will be renewed when Mrs. George Axworthy, of London, England, and Miss Frances Reilly, of New York, arrive in Atlanta tomorrow to visit Mrs. J. B. Keough. The visitors and Mrs. Keough met in 1935 in Peiping when the latter was visiting her brother, Lieutenant Henry Keough, who was stationed there as naval attaché with the American embassy. At that time Mrs. Axworthy and her husband, Captain Axworthy, an officer in the British army, were residing in the Chinese capital where the captain was detailed as adjutant in the British Guard the British embassy.

Miss Reilly, who hails from New York, and is a world-wide traveler, as spending several months with friends in Peiping and was entertained frequently at the British and American embassies. It was at the many diplomatic affairs attended by Mrs. Keough, Mrs. Axworthy and Miss Reilly that the three became such good friends and planned a reunion in the spring of 1937 with Atlanta, Georgia, in the United States of America, for the setting.

Mrs. Axworthy arrived in the city on April 5 aboard the steamer, Queen Mary. Since that time she has been visiting Miss Reilly at her 76th street home in New York. Sally Forth learned at both the English visitor and Miss Reilly are athletically inclined, their chief diversions being horseback riding and tennis. Proposals of that the numerous social parties planned for the visitors by friends of Mr. and Mrs. Keough will be at fresco and will generally follow tennis games and horseback rides.

The initial event honoring the visitors is scheduled for Sunday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Keough will be hosts at 6 o'clock at their home on Montclair drive to introduce their guests to a group of close friends.

Current rumor is correct, another matrimonial barge has hit the rocks and the first and second mates have taken separate boats. After their marriage a little over a year ago they moved to a near-by southern state to reside, but their voyage ran into troubled waters and now the bride is returned to her home port, and from all present indications there will be no setting sail again. She is a pretty brunette, as are her family, and prior to her marriage she was numbered among popular members of the bunter set.

MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK, the brilliant young wife of China's generalissimo, whose thrilling story of her husband's captivity and release from Si-an is running serially in The Constitution, became quite loyal to the south while she was a student at Wesleyan College in Macon. Entering school there at the age of 15 as Mayling Soong, member of prominent and wealthy Chinese family, she was tutored privately until old enough to enter the sub-graduate class. There she heard and read much of the indignities offered by the south during the war between the States. Of a vicious, enthusiastic and intensely loyal nature, she became imbued with a deep love for the south and ever failed to champion its cause in any controversy.

After finishing freshman class at Wesleyan, the future Madame Chiang entered Wellesley College where she subsequently graduated. In one of her classes she was given a theme to write on the subject of Sherman's march through Georgia.

The young Chinese girl was ignorant. She vehemently declared to her classmates that she would not write on such a subject. And she was true to her word. On the day the theme was to be finished, she handed in a blank paper with this note attached:

"This is a subject that is very distasteful to all southerners, and especially to me personally."

Monte Carlo Party.

The Townsend Chancel Club of the Heart parish will sponsor Monte Carlo party at the German-American Club this evening 8 o'clock.

Members of the Junior Catholic club of Atlanta and the Newman club of Georgia Tech are invited.

Miss Newberne Weds Arthur Joe McGhee In Church Study

The marriage of Miss Margaret Newberne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bond Newberne, and Arthur Joe McGhee, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Llewellyn McGhee, took place yesterday at a quiet ceremony at 5 o'clock at Glenn Memorial church in the study of the pastor, Rev. Nathaniel C. Long, who performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father. The groom had his father, Dr. McGhee, for his best man.

The blond beauty of the attractive bride was enhanced by her becoming costume of navy blue lace, offset by white collar and cuffs. Her smart hat was of navy blue straw made off-the-face style and trimmed with gardenias. Completing her ensemble was a shoulder cluster of gardenias, violets and valley lilies. Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. McGhee will reside on Fourteenth street.

The bride, only daughter of her parents, graduated from North Fulton High school. She attended Oglethorpe University and was pledged to Chi Omega sorority. She studied music at Marshall College in Huntington, W. Va., and belongs to the Atlanta Junior Woman's Club.

The bride's mother is the former Miss Margaret Nelson. Her maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. George B. Nelson, the latter having been Miss Margaret Flowers. Her paternal grandparents are James R. Newberne, of Brownsville, Tenn., and the late Mrs. Anna Bond Newberne, of Virginia.

Mr. McGhee is a graduate of Georgia Tech in the electrical engineering school. He completed his preparatory work at Emory & Henry College in Virginia. Dr. McGhee, his father, is professor of biochemistry at Emory University in the medical school. Mrs. McGhee, his mother, is the former Miss Mary Lane, of Valdosta.

Miss Jeanette Smith Marries Mr. Merry at Chapel Ceremony

Miss Jeanette Smith became the bride of John W. Merry at an impressive ceremony which was solemnized yesterday afternoon in the Winship chapel of the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. H. H. Shell, pastor of the Bainbridge Baptist church, officiating. Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, church organist, and Miss Margaret McCary, young vocalist, rendered a musical program. The altar was banked with graceful palms, and seven-branched candelabra holding lighted tapers, were placed on either side. Gracing the center of the altar was a basket filled with Easter lilies and snapdragons.

Ushers and groomsmen were Morgan and Albert Smith, brothers of the bride; Harry Malsby and Hugh Fleming. Miss Hilda Babb was maid of honor; Miss Virginia Merry, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and little Billie Clifton, of Bainbridge, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The bride's attendants were gowned in taffeta models made along princess lines, the maid of honor wearing orchid and Miss Merry and the flower girl wearing turquoise blue. The dresses featured square necklines and short, puffed sleeves with pleating introduced at the shoulders, and the bodices at the back, and extended from the neckline to the hem of the full skirts. Miss Babb and Miss Merry wore maline hats in halo style, which matched their dresses, the brims being finished with taffeta bands. They carried bouquets of roses and snapdragons tied with taffeta ribbon. The flower girl carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pastel-shaded flowers.

The bride entered with her grandfather, N. Jack Smith, who gave her in marriage, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Charles G. Mullings Jr. The bride's blond loveliness was offset by her wedding gown of white satin made with a square neckline and yoke formed of real lace. Tiny satin-covered buttons extended from the neckline at the back of the dress to the hem, and the long sleeves were trimmed with buttons from the elbow to the wrist. The full skirt had ended in a short train. Her tulle veil was finger-tip length with a band of ruche outlined with orange blossoms worn across her hair, and the orange blossoms circled her head. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies tied with white satin ribbon. She wore a string of pearls, the gift of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Jack Smith, of Bainbridge, and carried a lace handkerchief belonging to her cousin, Mrs. William Alden, of Knoxville, Tenn.

Mrs. Morgan Lewis Smith, mother of the bride, was gowned in a dress of St. James' blue crepe, and she wore a navy blue straw hat trimmed with lighter blue flowers. Her flowers were tallismans roses and valley lilies. Mrs. Roy G. Merry, mother of the groom, wore a black and white dotted sheer model and a black straw hat. Her flowers were gardenias.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Mills, uncle and aunt of the bride, entertained at a reception at their home on Parkwood drive. Later the bride and groom left for a wedding trip by motor to Miami and Cuba. Mrs. Merry chose for traveling a navy blue print dress and a full-length coat of blue Kasha cloth. Her hat was of navy blue straw trimmed in white pique and she wore a shoulder cluster of orchids. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Merry will reside with the groom's mother on Woodcrest avenue.

LOVELY REDINGOTE FROCK FOR THE MATURE FIGURE.

The redingote is more popular than ever this season, and no wonder, when it can present such a distinguished design as today's model: A graceful shawl collar meets a row of tiny covered buttons. The matching insert in the skirt gives the redingote effect. Wide flared sleeves assure comfort and poise. There is a hint of the new girle waistline in the gathers high at each side, that makes for an extremely good fit. A printed widely spaced sheer in silk rayon or cotton, with darker contrast for collar and underskirt. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1298-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 requires 4 yards 35-inch material, plus contrasting 1 yard. Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns. Interesting and exclusive fashions for little children and the difficult junior age; slenderizing well-cut patterns for the mature figure, afternoon dresses for the most particular young women and matrons and other patterns for special occasions are all to be found in the Barbara Bell Pattern Book. ## Miss Mary Powell and Allen Palmer Wed at Epiphany Church Rectory

Of state-wide interest is the announcement made today of the marriage of Miss Mary Richardson Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fenn Powell, to Allen Warren Palmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Addison Palmer. The ceremony took place on Sunday at the rectory of the Church of the Epiphany with Rev. Russell K. Smith officiating.

The bride was attired in a traveling suit of navy blue with white accessories. She is the eldest daughter of her parents and is the sister of Mrs. J. M. Clements, Mrs. E. E. Whitten and Miss Sallie Powell, of Atlanta. She attended Brenau College for two years, specializing in dramatic arts.

On her maternal side the bride is a granddaughter of Mrs. J. O. Hamilton and the late J. O. Hamilton, who was a leading banker of Vienna, Ga. On her paternal side the bride is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. J. Frank Sims and Edward Powell, prominent pioneer citizens of Dooley county, Georgia.

The groom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Addison Palmer. His father is secretary of public relations of the Southeastern Underwriters' Association and well known in insurance circles in the southeastern states. His brothers are Richard A. Palmer Jr. and W. Chapin Palmer. He attended the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., where he was a member of the Pi Omega Literary Society, co-director of the Sewanee Glee Club, assistant art director of the "Mountain Goat," a college publication, and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

He traveled extensively in this country and parts of Europe, studying art and music. Since his return to Atlanta he has been associated with The Atlanta Constitution as advertising artist and at present is acting as assistant art director with the James A. Greene Advertising Company.

On his maternal side he is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Simmons, of Lawrence, Mass., descendants of the Plymouth colonists. On his paternal side he is the grandson of Mrs. Caroline Dana Palmer and the late Thomas Herbert Palmer, pioneer family of Savannah. After the ceremony the couple left on a motor trip and after May 1 will reside at 133 Tenth street, N. E.

HARLAN WITNESS REVEALS THREAT

Kentuckian Had Testified of $100 Offer To 'Shoot Up' Union Organizer.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP) Lawrence Howard, a grocery clerk from Harlan county, Ky., told senate investigators today he had been roughly handled and "menaced" after he had testified before the civil liberties committee last week.

A few days later, he said, he received a threatening telephone call at his Washington hotel advising him to leave town by 6 p. m. "If you don't," he quoted the anonymous person, "they may bury you in Arlington cemetery. If you go back, they may bury you in Resthaven (a Harlan county cemetery)."

Howard testified last Thursday that deputies employed by Harlan coal companies had offered him $100 to "shoot up" the home of a union organizer. He said he refused, and that deputies told him "we can do it ourselves."

PLANE CARRIERS TESTED FOR WAR

Fleet Moves Nearer To 'Attack' Honolulu in War Game.

ABOARD BATTLESHIP PENNSYLVANIA April 21.—(AP)—A few days later, he said, he received a threatening telephone call at his Washington hotel advising him to leave town by 6 p. m. "If you don't," he quoted the anonymous person, "they may bury you in Arlington cemetery. If you go back, they may bury you in Resthaven (a Harlan county cemetery)."

Around the Saratoga and Lexington, each carrying $45,000,000, scout planes buzzed like wasps. With 33,000 tons displacement, these giant carriers are considerably faster than their newer comrades, the Ranger, a 14,500-ton carrier costing $21,000,000.

War broods of this three-ship division embrace 288 fighting planes. They fly in squadrons from the long wide decks from dawn until dusk. In widespread missions they scout far and near for signs of submarine activities or of aerial or surface foe.

Acting as godmothers for the baby will be Mrs. Henry Poer and Miss Jane McMillan. The godfathers will be Philip Alston and Richard Flinn.

Appropriate for the Bride-to-Be

Next to the ring itself, the bride-to-be will cherish this romantic "heart and clover" quilt so aptly called "bride's quilt." And especially so if her friends donate their own choice scraps for the dainty hearts that are the chief motif of the 8-inch blocks. Keep the "lucky" four-leaf clovers a uniform color and make this four-piece quilt still more effective. A favorite type quilt in Colonial days, it is popular again today. In Pattern 5844 you will find the block chart, an illustration of the finished block in actual size, showing contrasting fabrics; accurately drawn pattern pieces; an illustration of the entire quilt; three color schemes; step-by-step directions for making the quilt; and exact yardage requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Atlanta Woman's Club Honors Members of Press at Breakfast

Members of the Atlanta Woman's Club honored representatives of the three Atlanta newspapers yesterday, at a beautifully appointed breakfast in the banquet hall of the club on Peachtree street. The tables were adorned with bowls filled with wild azalea and vari-colored tulips. Mrs. F. F. Melton, the president, presided at the program.

Mrs. Max E. Land paid tribute to the press in a poem and short address, and Mrs. William P. Dunn gave an interesting talk in praise of the work done by Atlanta newspapers. She spoke of the honor recently conferred on Major Clark Howell, president and editor of the Atlanta Constitution, that of rector of the Associated Press.

Jack Lamb, nationally known sherman and author, made a talk, and Garnett Trotter rendered local solos, accompanied at the piano by A. B. Middleton. Mrs. dis Clay Poundstone, chairman of parties and official teas, was in charge of the arrangements, and Mrs. W. G. McRae, chairman, and Mrs. Claude McGinnis, co-chairman, were in charge of decorations.

Dr. W. F. Melton, president of the Writers' Club, spoke to the guests, and recalled his visit to Atlanta in 1912 as a member of the Emory University Club. The club issued an edition of The Atlanta Constitution, and the members were entertained at a luncheon given by the late Asa Candler and the late Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution, at the old Kimball House.

Mrs. Floyd McRae To Honor Visitor.

Mrs. Floyd McRae Sr. has invited a group of close friends for tea next Monday to meet Mrs. W. V. Struby, of Denver, Col., who arrived yesterday to visit her sister, Mrs. Floyd McRae Jr., at her home on Haysboro road.

Mrs. Struby is numbered among Atlanta's important spring visitors and during her visit will be honored at a number of informal social affairs. She frequently visits Mrs. McRae and is pleasantly remembered by her Atlanta friends.

Miss Hull Honored At Buffet Supper By Mr. Nelson

Miss Mamie Hull, of Augusta, an attractive and lovely member of the debutante coterie, in her native city, was central figure at the buffet supper given last evening by Raymond Nelson, at his Peachtree street residence. The house was beautified with calla lilies and the lace-covered table in the dining room was adorned with calla lilies, placed in an antique blue glass container. White tapers burned in matching candlesticks to add to the artistic decorations. Mrs. C. E. Roddey, Mrs. George Gantt and Clarence Rose assisted the host in entertaining.

Misses Louise Battey, Sara Dyess, Ruth Jones, Eleanor Crans-ton and Elizabeth Lee, of Augusta, sister debutantes of charming Miss Hull, were guests, as were Misses Marguerite Roddey and Cora Gantt. Their escorts were Harry Stafford, Hal Deas, Arthur Tufts Jr., Thornton Deas, Bobby Connally, Ewell Gay, Olin Crabb, Bob Regenstein, Cleland Nelson and the host.

The Augusta belles, descendants of distinguished and prominent families, return home today after having been entertained at a series of social affairs. They expect to motor to California the latter part of June to spend the summer motoring in the western states.

Junior Division.

Miss Clements and Mr. Reitz Jr. Wed at Grace Church Ceremony

MRS. HERMAN J. REITZ JR.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Clements to Herman John Reitz Jr., of Decatur, took place on March 19 at Grace Methodist church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. L. Shelton in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

Mrs. C. D. Henderson was matron of honor and the bride's only attendant. She wore an ensemble of beige wool with accessories of brown and a shoulder bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. C. D. Henderson was best man.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gray wool suit featuring a finger-tip length coat. Her blouse was of powder blue, with accessories of navy blue. She wore a shoulder cluster of talisman roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Reitz is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Margaret Clements and the late J. A. Clements, of Towns. She is descended from the Guffords and Ponders on her maternal side and the Brownings and Clements on her paternal side. Both families were prominent in business and social life in south Georgia and Florida. Mrs. Reitz is the sister of Mrs. H. J. McHenry, of Shreveport, La.; Mrs. D. B. Stewart, I. S. Mary Jim Clements and C. H. Clements, of Atlanta, and R. L. Clements, of Lynchburg, Virginia.

The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Reitz, prominent citizens of Decatur. On his maternal side he is a descendant of the Lords of Maryland and the well-known Reitz family of Baltimore on his paternal side. His mother was before her marriage Miss Nancy Catherine Lord. Mr. and Mrs. Reitz are residing at 373 Moreland avenue, N. E.

Garden Club of Georgia Convention Opens Two-Day Session in Rome Tomorrow

ROME, Ga., April 21.—The Seven Hills Garden Club and Mount Berry Garden Club of Rome, are preparing for a full representation of the state garden clubs on Friday and Saturday, when the Garden Club of Georgia meets in Rome.

Noted speakers will talk on timely garden subjects, and club business will be interspersed with social affairs for relaxation and pleasure. Among the events will be a dinner at Shorter College and a tea in the Ford quadrangle at Berry school, when visitors will see the lovely gardens and the world-famous work done there, and be guests in Miss Martha Berry's home.

Miss Irina Khraboff will present her illustrated lecture, "Gardens of Balkan Royalities," which has been given in Chicago, Cleveland and New York. She is said to possess a cosmopolitan personality, being Russian by birth and temperament, American by residence and fame, Serbian by marriage, and Russian and American by education. She speaks many languages and is familiar with many cultures. With such a background it is not surprising she has achieved such outstanding success with her lectures.

The Seven Hills Garden Club and the Mount Berry Garden Club, of Rome, will entertain the convention and co-operating with them will be the Istalena and Mont Aventine clubs, of Rome, and the Cedar Valley Garden Club, of Cedar town; the Berry schools and Shorter College.

Mrs. Donald Hastings is president of the Garden Club of Georgia, will preside at the convention deliberations. Convention co-chairmen are Mrs. Thomas Berry, former state president, and Mrs. Ed Maddox, president of the Seven Hills Club. Chairmen of committees in charge of arrangements are Mrs. Aubrey Matthews, program; Mrs. George Watts, registration; Mrs. J. H. O'Neil, hospitality; Mrs. Bolling Sullivan, favors; Mrs. Howard Lewis, badges; Mrs. Harlan Starr, Mrs. Jennie B. Hurst and Mrs. Will Mitchell, menus; A. A. Cooper, transportation, and Mrs. Doyle Moore, publicity.

Use Mercorized Wax All-Purpose Cream To Beautify Your Skin

The bleaching and beautifying process recommended by most beauty authorities is one that will hasten Nature's own way of gradually peeling off the dead outer layer of skin cells. That is exactly the method Mercorized Wax follows in its quest for beauty for your skin. Mercorized Wax very gently flakes off the dull, dark outer skin cells in tiny unseen particles. This keeps the skin constantly renewing itself. Such natural activity in the skin wards off the possible appearance of blemishes.

Mercorized Wax keeps the skin in a healthy glowing condition. Use it daily. Your complexion will always be fine-textured, velvety-soft and young-looking. Mercorized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

Use Saxolite Astringent daily. A refreshing, stimulating skin tonic. Smooths out wrinkles and age lines. Refines coarse pores. Eliminates oiliness. Dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. At all drug stores.—(adv.)

Contract Bridge

By ELY CULBERTSON.
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Herewith is presented another portion of Mr. Culbertson's latest work on contract, the "Gold Book of Bidding and Play," which is being reproduced in this column in daily installments.

MAJOR SUIT SUPPORT.

A take-out double always implies major suit support.

When the doubled bid is a major suit, strong support in the other major may be expected by the doubler's partner. If, at times, such support is lacking, then the doubler will have equivalent values.

The following hands justify take-out doubles of an opponent's bid of one heart: Spade K Q 5 3, heart 7 2, diamond A Q J 5, clubs, K J 10. Double: an ideal type of hand with three and one-half-plus honor tricks, and support for any suit partner bids.

♠ K 10 9 5 ♦ A Q J 6 3 ♣ A J 6 4

Double: although there are only three spades, the support for all suits is good and a take-out double best expresses the strength of the hand.

TODAY'S HAND.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I played a rather interesting hand at the local country club recently. I am not defending either the bidding or my opponents' leads, but I do feel that it was a nice contract to fulfill.

The bidding:

West South West North

Pass 1 heart Pass 2 diamonds

Pass 3 spades Pass 4 spades

Pass Pass Double (final bid)

"The opening lead was the ace of hearts, followed by a low heart which was won by dummy's jack. On a club lead from dummy East returned up with the ace and trump, and the diamond finesse was successfully taken. The diamond ace was cashed and a third round ruffed with the deuce of trumps. After that a straight cross-ruff followed. Poor West, who still had his original six trumps, had to play one on every trick, but never actually took a trump trick. Five odd were made, the defenders' ace being the only cards to win tricks.

"Your very truly,

"V. C. B., Philadelphia."

The moral is that too many trumps may be a white elephant. West should have opened 1 heart, and continued with trump leads at every opportunity, admittedly very few on this hand. This defense would have given West two trump tricks instead of none. Incidentally South would have started with 4 one spade bid.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: Please give the law covering the point in which a defender plays to a trick when it is his partner's turn to play.

Answer: Law 8: If a defender plays to a trick when it is his partner's turn to play, declarer, unless he has played from both hands, may require the other defender to play his highest or lowest card in the suit led and, should he be unable to follow suit, to play a specified suit.

A WELCOME RIMMING.

Gordon Merrill, service station attendant in Buhl, Idaho, lost his ring a month ago. Last week a fellow attendant found it inside a tire rim on a customer's motor car. Merrill remembered he had mounted the tire last month.

DOUBTFUL REWARD.

Whoever stole a cast iron drain pipe from the County Engineering Department in Columbus, Ohio, labored for his loot. Sheriff Jacob E. Sandusky said it weighed more than 800 pounds. It was rolled a long way on the ground and then loaded on to a truck.

My Day

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday.—Last night we had a rather prolonged dinner because I actually had the temerity to discuss a time-taking question of mathematics with the gentlemen, my husband and my brother.

I know women should never discuss mathematics: our minds don't function that way. But, on the whole, it didn't work out so badly because everything was so carefully explained to me and I was so persistent that I think they finally got my point of view—which was, in this particular case, that mathematics made little difference, though it does seem to loom very large in the masculine mind.

As soon as we went upstairs I said good night to my guests and went to work at my desk. There is one thing quite certain, and that is that visitors who come for anything but formal entertainments should be prepared to entertain themselves from dinner time on, unless the President happens to be having a movie. Otherwise we both of us retire to our respective studies and a guest who expects to be entertained will have a disappointing time.

The weather continues to be lovely and this morning I got out for an hour and a half on the bridge path. My own horse, Dot, is lame, and so with considerable trepidation I rode Johnny's hunter, Badger. He is a most quiet and well-behaved horse and I gradually became accustomed to his gait. When he started for his first canter I found myself thrown out of my seat and up into the air with every motion. I wondered whether I was ever going to sit on him in comfort.

However, I achieved this before long and we returned very good friends. Badger evidently learned to understand my signals and I had grown accustomed to his gait. When I got off, a young man was waiting for me with a photograph he had taken one day along the path. It really is extremely good of the horses and I am glad to have it. He had his own copies of the photographs with him also. They had been listed and he asked rather diffidently whether I would be willing to autograph them. I am sure that anyone who visits the good-will industries, the Young Women's Christian Home, where I am expected to say "a few words," and then I attend the opening of one of the police clubs for negro boys, which means that I will not be home until well after 6 o'clock.

I have just been given the most comprehensive and really wonderful book on Washington. It has come out in the American Guide series and is done by the federal writers' project of the Works Progress Administration. Its size may be formidable but its content is quite thrilling. I am sure that anyone who visits Washington will be interested in having it.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

HOLLYWOOD, April 21.—A strong cast is being assembled for the Warner Brothers' picture, "Gentlemen After Midnight," formerly titled "The Love Derby," (the latter was dropped as being too reminiscent of the Canadian child-bearing derby).

The leading man is Leslie Howard, grateful for a picture haven after his sad stage encounter in "Hamlet." Playing opposite him will be Bette Davis, provided she complete "That Certain Woman" in time.

Bette portrays a temperamental actress in love with Howard. Her tantrums are given zest by the knowledge that a wealthy girl—Olivia De Havilland—is wildly infatuated with the actor. Patricia Knowles, who is engaged to Olivia, decides to put an end to the nonsense and employs Howard to disillusion the lovesick girl. But she falls more and more in love with him. How it all ends, I leave to your imagination.

Errol Flynn will receive a warm welcome from his studio when he reports for work in "The Perfect Specimen." He is expected on Thursday morning. The picture has been held up while Flynn was fighting publicity battles in Spain—i. e., a newspaper report he had been killed when his injuries amounted only to a bump on the forehead caused by falling plaster. However, all's well that ends well, and the picture, directed by Michael Curtiz, starts production immediately.

Miriam Hopkins is the leading lady, and Edward Everett Horton is expected to supply a large portion of the humor. The story, in line with the present cycle of crazy comedy, concerns a wealthy young man reared to be 100 per cent perfect. With the result that he becomes 100 per cent perfect snob. And it is Miriam's delightful task to bring him down from his perch, humanize and marry him.

Frances Lee, pretty brunet wife of Joel McCrea, is settling down to the continuance of her screen career in earnest. Following completion of her role as Gary Cooper's sweetheart in "Souls At Sea," she plays a leading part in Paramount's "Ebb Tide," the Robert Louis Stevenson story, to be made in technicolor. Another newcomer to the cast, which is headed by Frances Farmer and Oscar Homolka, and Lloyd Nolan, is Barry Fitzgerald, formerly with the Irish Abbey Players.

Buddy Rogers shares top billing with radio favorites Fibber McGee and Molly in Paramount's "This Way, Please." The air program of the popular couple will emanate from Hollywood during the six weeks scheduled for the film. Mary Livingston, of the Jack Benny radio program, is being tested for a featured part. If this sort of thing continues, there will soon be more radio favorites in the studios than on the air. Incidentally, Mary Pickford, wife, or sweetheart, of young Rogers, is expected back from Europe within the next few weeks, when the marriage, if any, is expected to take place.

News in brief: Bruce Cabot must cease his courtship of the wealthy Miss Gloria Baker and return to Hollywood for the part of a doctor in "General Hospital," authored by old-time Director Eric Von Stroheim. Norma Shearer reported signing a new long-term contract with M-G-M. Her first picture will probably be "Pride and Prejudice," to be followed by "Marie Antoinette." Composer Vincent Youmans is writing a screen musical comedy "Sweet Sunday," for Dorothy Lamour, whose rise to the heights is one of these Cinderella dream stories. Jean Hersholt has cancelled his trip to Australia, in favor of playing with Shirley

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

Article No. 4.

The popular notion that syphilis is "blood poison" probably grew out of the exploitation of that term by quacks and nostrum mongers of bygone times. Syphilis is no more blood poison than is tuberculosis or typhoid fever. Syphilis is a contagious constitutional disease running a course of years and at one time or another likely to affect any part of the body. Skin rashes, eruptions or lesions which may occur in the course of the disease are among the least harmful manifestations. Involvement of the nervous system, brain or spinal cord, in the third or later stage of the disease is perhaps the most harmful manifestation, and this, like other grave complications or sequelae, is the less likely to happen the more thorough the treatment in the first year of the disease.

Invariably the beginning or first sign of syphilis is the development of a hard sore, called chancre, at the point of inoculation or infection, whether the infection occurs through innocent casual contact or through immoral relations. A period of incubation elapses between the moment of inoculation or infection and the development of the chancre, usually three to five weeks. During this incubation period, however, the germs (called spirochetes, genus Treponema pallidum) are too few in number to cause any evident reaction, but as they multiply they induce local irritation, and the chancre appears.

This primary sore, the first stage of syphilis is usually a sinuous, painless sore, resembling an obstinate "cold sore," and it persists from four to six weeks before it heals, perhaps leaving a hardened spot for months. A week after the chancre first appears lymph nodes near by become painlessly enlarged, and within two or three weeks lymph nodes throughout the body are so enlarged—a week or two before the secondary stage of syphilis, the skin eruption (if any) sours in mouth, general malaise and fever resembling the onset of mild "grip."

Positive diagnosis of the primary sore is obviously of great importance, for on this diagnosis must hinge the success or failure of treatment. Ill-advised self-treatment of the "cold sore" may so change its character as to render diagnosis difficult or impossible. There is a much better chance of an accurate diagnosis in the first stage if the patient seeks medical advice at the very beginning. Microscopic examination may reveal the specific spirochete or treponema and settle the question absolutely, and thus weeks before a blood test would give any dependable information.

Occasionally chancre, the first stage of syphilis, may be multiple and also painful. Sometimes it appears only two weeks after inoculation. Sometimes it may not become very hard but remain throughout a soft sore. Sometimes it seems little more than an obstinate pimple or chafe or crack in skin or mucous membrane. Sometimes it is mistakenly regarded as a burn of the lip or tongue or a simple infection of a scratch or cut on the hand. In any case the safest course is to consult a physician if there is the slightest doubt about such a sore. Not just any doctor but one of good standing who is trained and equipped to make a scientific diagnosis.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

SCIENTIFIC DIET SAFEST AND SUREST.

Most people favor some special plan of their own for dealing with avoidpulsions. Some of you simply leave out of the menu certain foods with a fattening reputation, others "diet" by going hungry, and still others restrict themselves to less than average servings.

To each of these methods, the objections are as definite as the results are indefinite. By the first plan you are quite likely to miss some food element essential to health and beauty. The second plan of "dieting" inevitably ends in overeating and the regaining of lost weight. And by cutting down on all foods, you fail to discriminate between the protective foods and the non-essentials.

The results of any one of these home-made plans are not to be compared with the improvement to health and figure on the scientific plan. Once you give the scientific diet a trial, you will find it easier than any other. Here is the whole idea in a nutshell, so check up on yourself.

Weight and calories are your first concern. You want to know how many calories will maintain your weight at normal. Multiply normal weight for you by 16 or 17 (activity integers), and the result is your maintenance calories. Your excess of fat is inactive tissue and burns few calories, so your normal weight is to be used in these calculations. Now, take two-thirds your maintenance calories for your individual reducing diet. This reducing allowance will range from 1,000 to 1,600 calories a day, according to your weight and activity.

As to calories and diet—A good working plan is to allow as many grams of protein as there are kilograms in your perfect weight. (To save you looking it up—one kilogram equals 2.2 pounds avoirdupois.) Then include one-half as many grams of fat as protein, and have the remainder of your calories in carbohydrates, until you are using the full reducing allowance, or two-thirds your maintenance diet.

Working this out on the basis of 1,200 calories—the average reducing diet—you would have 60 grams of protein, or 240 calories; 30 grams of fat, or 270 calories; 170 grams or 700 calories; of carbohydrates—sugars and starches. Protein is higher than the other elements because it supplies material for building and repair, and it is needed in adequate amounts, whether or not you are reducing. The diet should at all times include protein in amounts not less than one-tenth your normal number of calories. This does not mean your reducing calories.

Since food fat is the element most easily converted into body fat, and each gram of fat yields two and one-fourth as many calories as either protein or carbohydrate, fat is cut as low as possible in the reducer's menu. Some carbohydrate must be included in the reducer's diet to prevent acidosis, which results from incomplete oxidation of the fat.

All you have to do to individualize the reducing diet for you daily, and to make it absolutely safe for your use, is to make sure the total calories for the day cover two-thirds your maintenance requirements. Because the method is exact, the results are certain.

PLEASANT HOMES

You have made gourds on a flat wicker tray your center piece and your food is served in earthenware bowls and plates, your linen is a gay, striped peasant cloth in tones of orange and brown. For favors you might place tiny Mexican earthen bowls and pots at each place and (just for fun) place a Mexican jumping bean in each tiny receptacle.

For the Children. Children of this day are getting a little bored with snappers and crepe paper caps, so we would suggest other favors for a really successful children's party. For very young ones, a barnyard group would make an attractive table setting—a center of the yard and barn, then let each child take home the tiny cows, horses and chickens as favors.

Let us do you a favor! No, let us tell you about favors, the sort that we'd like to take home from a party instead of the kind that are hurled out of the car window the minute you leave your hostess' house. Favors are supposed to be little gadgets by which to remember a pleasant party, but too often we've found them to be little nuisances which make you wonder what in the world you're going to do with them.

Spring Accessories. For a luncheon you just have a basket full of gay artificial flower boutonnieres, with your young daughter acting as flower girl? Any guest will love to have a gay addition to her spring accessories wardrobe.

If bridge is to follow luncheon, have the tallies attached to the stems of the boutonnieres.

The Mode in Miniature. Anything in miniature, provided that it is a smaller edition of something lovely, will make a welcome favor. Tiny china coach dogs, miniature vases and bowls for your garden club friends are happy thoughts. These miniature vases and bowls come in an infinite variety so that it is perfectly possible to choose a type that will harmonize with your table setting. Dear Miss Chatfield: I notice that when the subject of a man's mother and wife living together like a couple of spitting cats comes up that the entire blame for the trouble is laid at the door of the women. My own experience leads me to believe that the attitude of the son and husband plays a big part in deciding whether they live together in peace and harmony or in constant strife. My wife died, and soon after my father died, leaving my mother entirely dependent upon me for support. Mother knew that normally I would marry again, though she never told it in so many words. She often said that no two women could be happy under the same roof and she hoped that they would never fall to her lot to try it. When I became engaged I told her quite frankly that I couldn't support two establishments and didn't want her to go to a boarding house to live. Yet either she and my wife would have to live together peacefully or she would have to go to a boarding house. I told my intended the same thing and tried to impress upon her that if she wanted to make me happy she could do it by making friends with my mother. # Crackers Rained Out; Emil Leonard Faces Smokies Today

Pete de Paolo walked in and sat down. The Italian kid who was the speed king of the world in 1925 and again in 1927, is trying hard to be a businessman now—selling piston rings, or, rather, promoting them.

He toyed with the idea of driving in the Iron Derby again this year. He thought of it. And he thought of it from every angle.

Time was when he would tie a pair of his baby's shoes to the frame of his car and put his foot down hard—fighting the 500 miles of bouncing brick at Indianapolis—the board tracks and the dirt tracks.

But the bambino no longer is a bambino. And Pete de Paolo no longer is living in 1927 or 1925.

"It's 1937, isn't it?" he asked.

He might make a great race of it. In fact, I think he would. But, after all, the game belongs to the kids. And not many men have twice been champion of the world.

So, when the motors break into their stuttering roar on May 30, and gradually warm up to a steady, pulsing inferno of sound . . . and when the stench of burned castor oil begins to float on the air . . . Pete de Paolo will be a manager in one of the pits. He'll manage a four-wheel drive car with a Miller motor.

"You come up and sit in my pit," he said. "You can ride in one of the practice turns."

There I stopped him. I did that once. That was in 1927. And just once was enough. The breath goes. And the stomach and the other internal organs seem to pull out of the body on the turns. And we were not going so fast—as I recall just 90 miles an hour. But today they average more than 100 miles an hour for the entire 500 miles.

"Well, anyhow, you come and sit in the pit. That will be a new story."

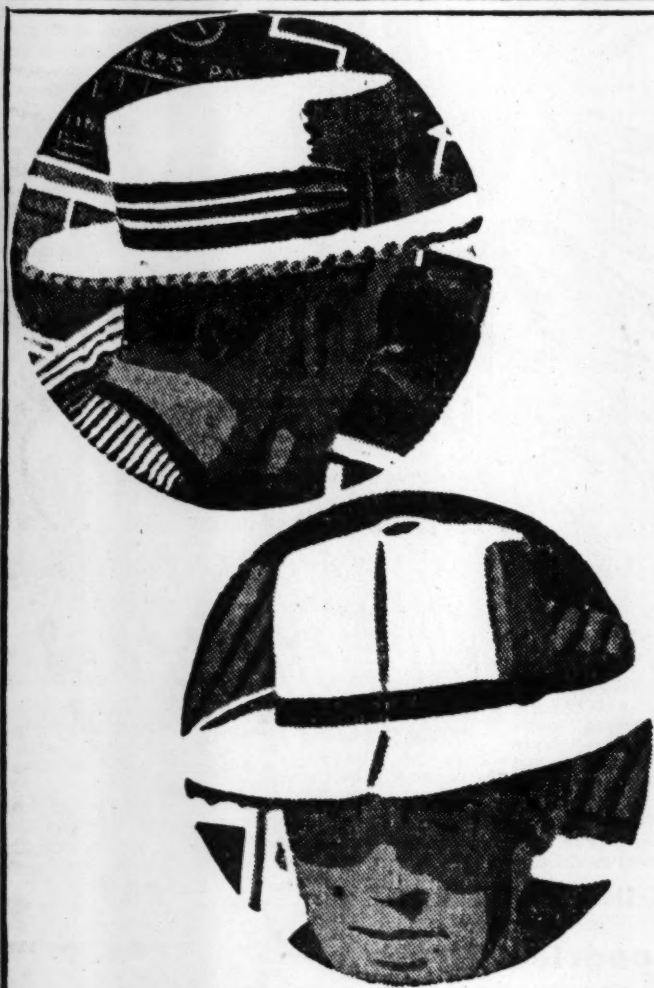

The "Iron Derby"—500 miles of speed and 150,000 or 200,000 looking on—America's greatest sporting spectacle. You can't argue any other way. The crowd proves it.

The craze for speed—and some say the morbid pull of the possibility of a wreck—with the scream of the meat wagon's siren going after some poor devil who has gone over the rim or crashed on a turn—well, it's more than that. But it's all a part of the picture.

HORNSBY LEADS BROWNS TO WIN OVER WHITE SOX

Rajah Smashes Homer, Two Singles; All Other Majors Rained Out.

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—(AP)—There were 39 hits in the slugfest which the St. Louis Browns won from the Chicago White Sox, 15 to 10, to open the American league baseball season here today, but Rogers Hornsby's home run led all the rest.

Hornsby, nearly 41 and back in active duty at second base after a layoff last season, smashed a home run into the center field bleachers back of the flag pole—430 feet from home plate. It started the Browns off on their seven-run fifth inning which drove the White Sox ace pitcher, Vernon Kennedy, to the showers.

A crowd slightly in excess of 8,000—About half that expected for the season opener which was postponed from yesterday because of rain—saw the Browns win their first season inaugural game since 1931. President William Harbridge, of the American league, was present.

Harold Clift, St. Louis third baseman who hit safely five times for a perfect day at bat, hammered a home run into the left-field stands right after Hornsby's circuit blow.

All other major league games were rained out.

McCarthy Celebrates 50th Birthday.

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—Rain today washed out two ball games in the metropolitan area, gave the players of four clubs an unexpected day off and permitted Manager Joe McCarthy, of the Yankees, to celebrate his 50th birthday at home.

As the down-pour continued tonight, it became uncertain if the National league Giants and Dodgers at the American circuit Yankees and Senators could continue their opening series.

McCarthy observed his half-century marker with "just a quiet sort of luncheon-dinner, you know. Nothing special."

"Most of the newspapers have me only 49 years old today," McCarthy volunteered. "But I'll be honest. I'm just 50. Hate to admit it. But I am. And I've been in baseball about 34 years."

NEW YORK, April 21.—(UP)—Thomas David Henrich, the Yankee's new $20,000 rookie outfielder, today exploded that beautiful myth about his being a "magazine ball player."

Henrich, a handsome six-footer with wavy taffy-colored hair and a fair complexion, claims he never read any magazine article by Billy Evans, business manager of the Red Sox. Hence the article he didn't read had absolutely no part in shaping his baseball destinies.

Tommy is the 21-year-old lad from Massillon, Ohio, who was designated as a first baseman.

Smokies Pack Most Power, Moore

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 21.—The club with more punch than highly rated Nashville, Birmingham, Little Rock and several others in the Southern league is none other than Knoxville.

As suspected along, the Smokies are going to be a contender for the first division. All Manager Neil Caldwell needs is some pitching help. Brooklyn promised it but has failed, thus far, to deliver.

The Smokies have terrific hitting power and a fair-to-middling defense. When Footsie Blair, who has a sore arm, returns to second base, they'll be that much better.

Manager Eddie Moore is willing to go on record as saying that if Knoxville gets any sort of pitching to go along with their hitting.

MAY BE LINDSEY.

Moore said he would rather not lead the Nashville series on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, said today he would pitch Lou Garland in the opener Friday and that he might possibly use Bob Durham and Bill Beckman in the other two games.

Two real features have developed on this trip. One is the very obvious fact that Alex Hooks has his eye on the ball and may have his greatest year at the plate.

And the other is the undoubted ability of little Jimmy Trexler.

THE SPORTLIGHT by GRANTLAND RICE

(Copyright, 1937, by The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

JOHNSON AND FELLER.

NEW YORK, April 21.—How would you compare the early careers of Walter Johnson and Bob Feller, the two greatest smoke-ball operators that ever broke into the big tent, Johnson at the budding age of 19 1/2 and Feller at approximately 17 1/2?

So many have asked this question that it seems about time to move deeper into the discussion and expose all the available facts.

Walter Johnson was born early in November, 1887, at Humboldt, Kan. He came to Washington in 1907 at the age of 19 1/2, bringing along the greatest speed baseball has ever known.

At this age he was 6 feet, weighed 195 pounds, with all the experience you can get from a semi-pro job at Weiser, Idaho—no records offered.

Bob Feller was born at Van Meter, Iowa, early in November, 1918, so today he is 18 1/2 years old. He stands 6 feet and weighs 185 pounds.

Both came from farms where you can't even find "soft living" in a dictionary. Both came into baseball as two rugged young fellows all stocked up with health.

First Years.

In his first year with Washington, 1907, Johnson worked in 14 games. He won five and lost nine with a tail-end chaser. In 112 innings he struck out 64 batsmen.

In his first year with Cleveland, Feller also worked in 14 games. He won five and dropped three. But in 62 innings he fanned, whiffed or struck out 76 men.

So Feller's strike-out ball at 17 1/2 plus was more effective than Johnson's whiff-ball when he was nearly two years further along.

Feller had a far better strike-out start than Old Barney knew for at least two years. Feller had the better start—even giving away nearly two years. And that's something to give away only a short while after you've stepped into your first pair of long trousers. And are two years away from your first razor.

Feller's start was much more sensational than Walter Johnson's big league beginning. His spring training record and his opening salute at the Polo Grounds against Carl Hubbell—no part of a bum—was something baseball had never known before. And you can go back to the days of the veteran Mr. Wright, of Boston, who played with the Reds of '69 through an unbeaten year. And that was 68 years ago. Which isn't yesterday.

Looking Here and Back.

Bob Feller has the jump on Walter Johnson, but holding the jump on Walter Johnson is another matter.

I recall the Johnson I first saw—a Johnson with a free, easy motion—the greatest pitching motion I ever saw in baseball.

And I can move on back to Denton Tecumseh Young, better known as Cy—to Rube Waddell as Detroit rookie under Frank Graves—to Matty Walsh, Alexander and a few more.

The two best pitching motions I ever saw belonged to Walter Johnson and Bugs Raymond. John McGraw gave Raymond the call. But even the famous Bugs lacked something of Johnson's smoothness.

Here was the finest pitching motion of all time—a full, free, swinging co-ordination of arm and body, of hand and wrist.

Johnson came to his first peak in 1910 when, with a weak hitting, low scoring set of mates, he won 25 games, lost 17 and struck out 313 men. No Dazzy Vance or Dizzy Dean has come even close to that count.

From 1910 on to 1917, Johnson struck out more than 200 batsmen every year, passing the 300 mark twice. He had a pretty fair curve ball, but he relied largely on speed. He was the only pitcher I ever knew who drove many of his opponents to faked claims of illness of one brand or another on the days he worked. In his career he struck out nearly 3,500 opponents and led them all in shut outs.

In 1913 Johnson won 36 games with only a fair ball club.

Back to Bob Feller.

Bob Feller has more speed than any pitcher I've seen since John-

BRADLEY HOPES BADLY BEATEN BY GREY GOLD

Brooklyn, Billionaire Two Lengths Back in Keeneland Feature.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 21.—(AP)—Brooklyn and Billionaire, the horses carrying Colonel E. R. Bradley's hopes for a fifth Kentucky Derby victory, suffered a decisive defeat at the hands of the lightly-regarded Grey Gold, of the E. W. Duffy stable, in the featured allowance race at Keeneland race course today.

Grey Gold dashed into a three-length lead in the first quarter. Billionaire was running second and Brooklyn third.

Billionaire pared Grey Gold's lead to a slim length entering the stretch, and Brooklyn was closing fast. For a moment it looked like another Bradley one-two.

But Grey Gold again drew clear and was under the wire with two lengths to spare.

Old Nassau, Chigre and Albulb, all Derby eligibles completed the field, but none was a contender.

Grey Gold rewarded his backers at $43.20. His time was 1:47 1/5. The track was good.

RYDER CUP STARS NEEDN'T QUALIFY

NEW YORK, April 21.—(AP)—Though the Professional Golfers' Association was criticized in some quarters when the names of six players picked for this year's Ryder cup team were announced, at least the P. G. A. saved itself some advance embarrassment.

There is no possibility that any one of the six—Tony Manero, Henry Picard, Denny Shute, Johnny Revolta, Horton Smith and Gene Sarazen—will fail to qualify for the United States open championship at Oakland Hills Country Club, Birmingham, Mich., June 10, 11 and 12, for all of them became automatically eligible when they finished among the first 30 and ties last summer at Baltusrol.

N. A. A. Track Date Moved to July 2-3

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—(AP)—L. Dibenedetto, chairman of the National Amateur Athletic union track and field committee, said today that the annual competition would be held at Marquette stadium on July 2 and 3.

Several good competitors from the University of Texas were entered, with Bill Welch, of Austin, given a chance for the crown. Tommy Barnes, of Atlanta, was Georgia Tech's best bet and Rosser Little, of Marietta, Ga., carried Georgia's hopes.

The following colleges were represented with teams: Louisiana State, Georgia Tech, Duke, The Citadel, Richmond, St. Petersburg, Fla., Augusta Junior College, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas, North Carolina, Davidson and Alabama. In addition, Emory and the College of Charleston also were represented with non-team entries.

they'll be tougher than tough. Here's a quick resume of what Knoxville has done in losing three out of the first four games, just to give you an idea.

SCORE 45 RUNS.

They have scored 45 runs, an average of 11 and a fraction to the game, and have hammered out 49 hits, or 12 and a fraction to the game.

Afield, they have been sufficiently proficient. They've lost three games simply because of the caliber of the pitching. Their pitchers haven't been able to hold the opposition in check at all.

Why, the Smokies scored nine runs in one inning against Chattanooga and then lost the game. They scored six in one frame against the Crackers and lost again. That all goes back to the pitching.

"We're going to get pitchers, good pitchers, shortly," Secretary Edgar Allen promised today.

"WATCH OUR SMOKIES."

"And then just watch our Smokies." The Smoky outfield of Feathers, Oats and Webb is plenty formidable at the plate. Warren, from Oklahoma City, is a slugging catcher, a good receiver, too.

Caldwell, Blair, White and Adair form a competent infield that can hit.

The Smokies are going to get in somebody's eyes—and hair—ere summer ends.

BROWNS BUY.

ST. LOUIS, April 21.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced today the purchase of Julio Bonetti, young right-handed pitcher, from Des Moines, the Western league. The price was not announced.

DEVILS DEFEAT TIGERS, 13 TO 5, IN PRELIMINARY

Loss Is First for L. S. U. Since Bowing to Northwestern in 1936.

By KENNETH GREGORY.

ATHENS, Ga., April 21.—(AP)—A fast field including several of the south's ranking amateurs entered today the third annual southern intercollegiate golf tournament, with young Freddie Haas Jr., of Louisiana State University, on hand to defend his title.

Fifteen colleges were represented and additional entries were expected to be filed tomorrow morning before the field starts the 36-hole qualifying round. Sixty-nine players were registered.

The collegiate golfers practiced over the Athens Country Club course today, but a heavy afternoon rain practically interrupted the tune-ups.

DUKE BEATS L. S. U.

Finishing in a drizzle of rain, Duke University's Blue Devils essayed a challenge for the team championship by thoroughly trouncing Louisiana State in a match, 13 to 5. Deupree, of Duke, scored three points over Gaskin, of L. S. U., while Haas edged Morris, 2 to 1. Haas had a 35-40-75, two over par. The team score was Duke 2 and Louisiana 1.

On the other side Johnny Cree bested Lawrence Larcade, of L. S. U., 2 1/2 to 1-2, and Gar Miller, of Duke, trounced Wright Adams, 2 and 1, with the foursome count Duke 2 1-2 and L. S. U. 1-2.

This was the only team match to finish. It was Louisiana State's second loss in the last three years, the Baton Rouge golfers having been turned back by Northwestern in 1936.

Paul Leslie, of Jefferson City, Mo., the No. 2 man on the L. S. U. team and current western amateur champion, is back seeking a second crown. He won the inaugural in 1935 but was eliminated last year in the second round by Lewis Johnson, of the College of Charleston. Johnson is entered today with Billy Eager, Georgia Tech star, of Valdosta, Ga., runnerup to Haas last spring.

JOHN MORRIS ENTERED.

Among other favored players for the individual crown were Johnny Morris, of Birmingham, Ala., medalist in the southern amateur two years ago, and Bill Deupree, of Fort Mitchell, Ky., both students of Duke University.

Several good competitors from the University of Texas were entered, with Bill Welch, of Austin, given a chance for the crown. Tommy Barnes, of Atlanta, was Georgia Tech's best bet and Rosser Little, of Marietta, Ga., carried Georgia's hopes.

car in a series of races in North Africa, Germany and France a few years ago.

And he almost brought about an international crisis. He was driving in a race at Berlin on the Avus speedway.

"I was doing swell," said Pete, "until it started raining torrents. I was still doing swell after I got used to the rain.

"But all of a sudden two connecting rods broke and the engine came apart. One of the rods almost hit Adolf Hitler, who was in the grandstand.

"I was lucky to get out alive. Hitler was very nice about it," said Pete.

The little Italian has been in lots of crashes. He has been picked up for dead. And yet, here he is, not a scar showing and going strong.

A BIT OF GOLF.

"Any talk hereabouts about John (Mysterious) Montague?" asked Pete de Paolo.

"Plenty."

"Well, I know him well. And my brother, Johnny Paolo, who is a pretty fair golfer himself, is a close friend to Montague.

"He's all they say he is. He has the golf world in a stew. No one knows from whence he comes. No one knows anything about his personal history. But he is a golfer. And all those stories about his waging on his game are true."

"I've talked to some fellows who say he is just a fair golfer—a 75 shooter."

"Listen, he plays a flexible game. If he's out with an 80 shooter, he'll shoot a 78. If his opponent gets down to a 70, he'll have a 68. I believe he can shoot down in the sixties about any time he chooses."

"What if he were tossed into a competitive field such as an open tournament?"

"Search me. But when the money chips are down he can play the game of golf. My brother plays with him every week. And Johnny Paolo is a low handicap man. But Montague can take him with all ease."

"One day I asked Johnny: 'What about him? Tell me the low-down.' And Johnny said, 'All I know is he is all right. And he can play golf. And he doesn't talk about himself.'"

All of which is just one more chapter in the many chapters about "Mysterious" Montague, who, some of the lads say, is the greatest golfer in the game. And who, some say, is just a fair golfer who got publicity by refusing to give any—that's the easiest way. Ask Miss Greta Garbo.

Anyhow, it was good seeing Pete de Paolo again. I saw him win at Indianapolis. And not long ago he was through with one of his books—"Wall Smacker." A new one is being written—the story of the mechanics.

the fire-ball southpaw, Trexler, limping from a charley horse, pitched the ninth inning of Tuesday's game in big league fashion. He simply rared back and fired the ball in there. The heavy end of the Smoky battering order could not do anything with him.

One is heartily inclined to agree with Trexler's hope that they turn on the lights soon in Southern league parks.

LIKES NIGHT PLAY.

"I like the night life of the diamond," he said. And you may bet your boots that no less than seven clubs are going to be surprised when they see the speed generated by the midget Trexler, who hops off the mound like a rabbit.

It's probably just as well that they didn't play today. Because there was a very strong wind blowing toward the fences and ordinary high flies would have carried against them or over.

This is a strange park. There is always a wind. Stronger some days than others. And many flies that would go for outs in the other league parks are either doubles or home runs here.

For that reason, Prince Henry Oana, who has been wearing the cover off the ball, ought to hit at least 25 homers here this summer.

He hit five a country mile over the left field fence in batting practice today.

Eddie Moore likes the way Jim Galvin pounds the ball in the spring. "I don't believe any other league club has a man that can come close to Galvin as a clutch hitter for the first 30 days of the season."

looked great. He may be just what we are looking for. And this boy, Gordon Maltzberger, from Macon, also looked good. Jim Galvin, who caught the game, told me the boy looked fine and had a lot of stuff."

"What made it such a wild ball game?"

"GONE WITH THE WIND." "Well, the starting pitchers and the relief pitchers didn't seem to have their stuff. And in addition it was blowing a gale. The two home runs looked more like sails. They got into that wind and popped out of the park. It was quite a game."

Mann reported the club was going along all right. It is in the process of settling down. Winning three of the first four games was quite a feat.

No changes are contemplated for the very simple reason none is needed. It is impossible to rate a Lefty Archer or Ed Clements To Hurl for Petrels.

ATHENS, Ga., April 21.—Coach Smith will start a battery of Wallace Miller and Lee Richards in the opening game of the series with Oglethorpe at Decatur Friday.

Rain Wednesday caused a postponement of the first Oglethorpe-Presbyterian baseball game.

The second of the series will be played at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Hernandine field. Coach Anderson will start Lefty Archer or Ed Clements on the mound. P. C. Coach Galloway was undecided.

Oglethorpe will play Georgia two games, Friday and Saturday afternoon, on Decatur High's field.

TARZAN'S QUEST No. 106

As Tarzan dropped down, the lion stopped in his tracks, eyeing the intruder with displeasure. The beast growled, then advanced again. From the cavity of Tarzan's mighty chest rolled savage growls, and he moved slowly forward to meet his antagonist.

Again the carnivore halted, and glanced quickly from side to side. He snarled, wheeled, and stalked majestically away. The Jungle Lord had out-bluffed the beast. Now Tarzan turned to the amazed man who sat on the ground, anxious to question him about Jane.

... But poor Jane, in the hands of the Kavuru, was beyond immediate aid. She knew she was not strong enough to escape from her captor by force; she must try strategy. "Put me down," she urged. "It will be easier for both of us if you allow me to walk."

At first the Kavuru ignored the suggestion, but at last he put her down. Jane glanced quickly about her. The Kavuru apparently anticipated her purpose. He raised his spear. "Do not try to escape," he warned. "If you do, Odili may have to kill you!"
